

EASY FILTH OKAYED BY SUPREME COURT

Brooklyn, New York, - A flood of pornography that will make Noah's flood look like an overflowing country brook will soon engulf the United States because of the recent Supreme Court decision on pornography, it was charged by the National Committee For Furthance of Jewish Education.

Accoding to Rabbi Jacob J. Hecht, NCFJE executive vice president, when the Supreme Court ruled that a many could possess or exhibit pornography in the privacy of his home, it removed the last major legal barrier keeping pornographic films and literature underground.

"By telling everyone that pornography in the home is permissible, the Supreme Court is not only sanctioning dirty movies and lewd books, it is actually promoting them," Rabbi Hecht said. According to Rabbi Hecht, people who before never thought of purchasing pornography will now do so because they think it is socially acceptable and desirable.

"The home of the future will consider pornography as commonplace and necessary as a color TV or dishwasher," he said.

As a result, Rabbi Hecht explained, large companies will now enter the pornography business, and will spend as much money marketing pornography to the American public as is now spent selling soap and cigarettes.

"The Supreme Court is to be severely criticized for its action in this case because the judges did not look beyond the strictly legalistic interpretation of their decision," Rabbi Hecht said.

Accoding to Rabbi Hecht, perhaps the decision was judicially correct, bt it certainly ignored the consequences.

"The Supreme Court never seems to realize that its influence extends far beyond its stated function of interpreting the Constitution," he said. "It seems to be completely unaware that to most of America's 200 million inhabitants, it is a symbol of justice and the arbiter of what is right and wrong in ethics."

"The only way now that we can possibly stem the tide of this pornography is for parents, educatos, and religious leaders to take militant action against it," he said.
