

NO NUCLEAR ARMS

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- United State officials have expressed the public view that Israel is not now planning to produce nuclear weapons even though the nation has the capacity to do so.

But in official background discussion American intelligence sources have expressed great concern that Israel is probably planning to build atomic bombs and speculated that political factors may be the main reason.

(In Jerusalem, authoritative sources term such reports "speculative and inexact." They said Israel was not a nuclear power and noted past Israeli pledges that it would not be the first nation to introduce nuclear weapons to the Middle East.)

The Israeli Embassy has denied that Israel planned to become a nuclear power and stated, "we don't have the bomb. We are not working on it." State Departments officials said the U. S. was satisfied that Israel would live up to its past pledges.

But intelligence officials speculated that the report that Israel planned such a step could be a factor inducing the Arabs to reach a settlement before Israel unveils its nuclear arms.
