

ISRAEL DINNER

Senior Episcopal Chaplain at Oregon and UCLA universities before going to South Africa where he was Dean of the Anglican Cathedral at Kimberley and then Bishop of Kimberley.

The bishop ran into difficulty with the South African government because of his militant opposition to the apartheid policies of the government.

An author and an international speaker, he is now a visiting fellow at the Center for Democratic Institutions. He also serves as executive director of Operation Connection, a national interfaith organization of Jewish, Protestant and Catholic leaders.

Bishop Crowther's book, "Where Religion Gets Lost in the Church," has drawn widespread comment and recently was featured on the national television show, "Today."

The dinner is expected to be widely attended by the many friends and supporters of Justice Zenoff, who will be honored both by the State of Israel and the National Israel Bond Organization. Justice Zenoff will be cited as "one who has rendered extraordinary service in every field of humanitarian endeavor and who has helped to advance the development of the State of Israel."

As an ardent supporter of the State of Israel, Justice Zenoff headed the 1969 State of Israel Bond Sales in Nevada as general chairman and has continued to serve as co-chairman for the past nine years.

The Tribute dinner will open with a reception at 6:30 p.m. at Caesars Palace.

The dinner is open to the public and reservations may be made by calling 384-5070 or 382-9588 or 734-8679.

MEDALS NOW FOR PUBLIC

REMEMBRANCE DAY MEDAL

The Israel Ministry of Defence agreed to release to the general public a limited number of The Remembrance Day Medals. These medals were struck in Israel in 1963 for the exclusive use of the Ministry, to be presented to the kin of fallen soldiers.

Description of the Medal: It contrasts, on its two sides, the destruction wrought by Rome to Judaea in 70 CE and the independence now restored by the supreme sacrifice of Jewish fighters for freedom.

Obverse: Here too, two equal sections, the right one again incuse. A stylized olive branch, symbolizing peace replaces the chain of the reverse. Right, in a rectangle with rounded corners, the familiar scene of the Medal of Liberation: the palm-tree, the kneeling man who plants a tree, the woman who happily lifts up her babe. On the rim, in Hebrew: "Israel Liberated," continuing on the left plane, "To the memory of those who fell for its independence." Below, in smaller letters: "Ministry of Defence."

On the edges, the emblem of the State, flanked by the words "State of Israel" in Hebrew and English, and "Manpower Department, Division for the Commemoration of the Fallen," in Hebrew.
