of the Mid Atlantic Region, explained that the library has one half million volumes, but that their goal for the coming year is one million. "Each woman who belongs to Brandeis puts books in the library through fund raising through her dues and through fund raising projects," she said.

Mrs. Morton Fungler also noted that no other University has a women's group whose sole purpose is to support and sustain their library.

"Books For Brandeis" was initiated in 1948 by eight women from Boston. When the first class arrived on the Waltham campus, the women raised $10,000 and converted a barn on the campus to a library with 2,000 books. Also in 1948, Brandeis Women's Committee became a national organization, and had accepted the responsibility for complete support of the Library, which was the only library movement of its kind.

During an interview later, Dr. Sachar said that he's not now carrying any administrative responsibilities. "This is an important change in my life," Dr. Sachar told me. "Morris Abram (Brandeis new President) is managing the University magnificently. He has fulfilled all we've hoped for. He has shown much maturity and Asked what he's doing with his freedom, Dr. Sachar related that he's still somewhat involved with several families where "my friendship may be useful to bring them closer to Brandeis."

Dr. Sachar disclosed that he has gone back to "my first love - writing." "I'm dedicating my time to the writing assignments which I've postponed for so long," he said.

He also said he's pleased with his new role - his television programs based on his courses of Contemporary History.

Dr. Sachar and his wife, Thelma, have just returned from a trip to Black Africa, Western Europe, Israel and the Scandinavian countries.

"It has been a year of continuous travels," he compassion. And he has shown much maturity and compassion. And he has seen us through our difficulties with the least amount of disruption."

LETTER

Dear Jack:

Just a word of appreciation for the beautiful coverage given Hadassah's Bingo for Youth Aliyah last week. Due to the active publicity, particularly yours, our fund-raiser was a total success, enriching Youth Aliyah projects by several thousands dollars.

In these troubled days our concern for the youth of Israel should never slacken.

My personal thanks to you.

Sincerely,
Blanche Stein publicity
