

Barney Glazer's "HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE"

At a recent Hollywood party, I singled out a pretty young actress wearing a Mogen David dangling from her neck. Knowing she isn't Jewish, I asked, "Why do you wear a Mogen David?" A blank look came over her face and she asked, "A what?"

"Don't you know what a Mogen David is?"

"Sure, it's a wine." After I had recovered my poise, the young lady advised that her Jewish boyfriend had given her the religious hexagram as a gift but had failed to explain its significance.

Considering the laxity of our Jewish children to study their Jewish heritage, maybe he didn't know.

THIS IS the time of year when every Jewish boy should consider getting married. So, boychik, start thinking about getting married. Pick yourself a plain Jewish girl like Elizabeth Taylor.

WHILE recently discussing a business matter, Danny Thomas (Lebanese) said to Joey Bishop (Jewish), "I wish it

I'D LIKE to hear from readers who can add personal experiences or information to the following:

The oldest drink in the world is mead, a honey wine. It's said to be the nectar of ancient Greek gods, but I think it goes back farther than that into biblical days. I'm sure that our Jewish ancestors first made it, at least my parents used to talk about their parents talking about it.

Drunk by Druids long before the Romans came to Britain, mead began to wane as a popular drink in the mid-17th century with the advent of ale and beer. Later, colonists in Jamestown in 1607 fermented the age-old honey wine.

Recently, a winery in the small town of Elk Grove, California, 25 miles south of Sacramento, began making mead. Its recipe includes: vetch, clover and orange blossom honey with a touch of hops, water and yeast.

Mead is the only wine in which the Revenue Service permits hops. That's because historically hops were always used.

BUDDY HACKETT, "I look like Frank Sinatra but you gotta look quick!"

IN HOLLYWOOD, CBS-TV Studios are located right in the middle of the Fairfax

Avenue borst belt. That's what CBS stands for: Corned Beef Sandwiches.

DID YOU hear about the orthodox Jewish cowboy actor who was fired? He refused to shoot Indians on the shabbos.

LINES I love from "Fiddler on the Roof's" original play, "Tevya." When one of the daughters asks why her mother is crying, Tevya replies, "When the heart is full, the eyes run over and it relieves the pressure."

And when Tevya discusses the ladies, he describes them thusly: "A woman is like a melon. Who knows what's inside?"

BROOKLYN-born comic Monty Guntz boasts, "I own the works - yamelkah, tsitsas, and tahiis. I never work the two seder nights, Passover, or Yom Kippur."

Monty once suffered a near-fatal auto accident. Watching him cavort on stage, we find it difficult to believe that at one time only a rugged constitution and the will to live pulled him through multiple injuries and major surgery.
