

Barney Glazer's 'HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE'

Comedienne Totie Fields, who recently opened in the Versailles Room at the Las Vegas Riviera Hotel, has been known on more than one occasion to become as emotional as a member of the jet set imprisoned in a senior citizen compound.

Because Totie's Italian husband, George, is a devoted husband and as relaxed as a kitten having its stomach rubbed, he managed to remain composed on night when Totie suddenly awoke screaming like a banshee.

"What's wrong, honey?" asked George sympathetically.

"George," slobbered Totie, "do you realize that I'm Jewish and you're Catholic and we can't be buried together?" That simple repetition aloud of her disturbing dream fomented even louder cries of anguish from the distressed comedienne.

"Okeh, relax, honey," soothed George, "Don't worry. I'll turn Jewish tomorrow."

True to his word, George instigated proceedings the following morning to convert to Judaism.

APPOINTED — Ray F.

Culley, well-known local businessman has joined the executive staff of the Four Queens Hotel. He will be in charge of public relations, sales promotion and advertising. He was formerly employed in Las Vegas with TWA for 16 years as District Sales manager.

Recently, Jan Murray's wife, Toni, repeated this story to her daughter, Celia. The Murrays were visiting Celia at the University of Colorado, in Boulder Dam. Jan was stretched out on a bed, watching a pro football game. Nearby, Tony and Celia were talking.

Toni related how Totie Field woke up screaming and how George had reacted. Suddenly, Jan sprang to his feet, the blood draining from his face.

"I never heard that either," he shouted. "Then it applies to us, too."

In a state of panic, he moaned, "That's awful. I can't live thinking that one day we won't be lying side by side."

Toni had to say something fast, otherwise Jan would have popped his cork. "Stop worrying, honey," she assured him. "I promise you I'll turn Jewish. Now please calm down."

When they returned to Beverly Hills, Toni contacted their good friend Rabbi Michael Roth. She related the Colorado incident.

Rabbi Roth expressed surprise. Like most of the Murrays' friends, he had accepted Toni as Jewish. After all, she always had maintained a Jewish home, raised her children as Jewish and attended services at the temple.

What Jewish name will append itself to Kathleen Toni Murphy, born of Baptist parents in Georgia? Her mother, Bertie Murphy, who has always cooked the Murrays' Pesach seder meals, had no idea.

How about Chanapessa, Mrs. Murphy?

Samuel Goldwyn's wife, Mrs. Frances Howard Goldwyn, has been appointed conservator of his person and $19,700,000 estate. A petition called the film magnate too old at 88 and ill to manage his own affairs.

Mrs. Goldwyn also received authority to continue operation of her husband's motion picture business.

Ampex Corporation offers many Jewish vocal and instrumental stars on its cassette, 4 and 8-track cartridge tapes, and open-reel tapes.

Among our favorites, we note: Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, "Our Best to You;" George Jessell, "At His Best;" "The Many Facets of David Newman;" my favorite jazz drummer, Shelly Manne's "My Fair Lady;" Benny Goodman in "Paris;" Andre Previn, "Gigi;" and Leonard Nimoy, "The Way I Feel."

Then there was this little Jewish boy who was walking down Hollywood Boulevard during the Yuletide season singing, "God rest ye, Jerry Mandelbaum."

Lots of confusion between David Rose, the noted composer-conductor, and David Rose, the equally celebrated film producer. They not only have the same name but their wives are both named Betty.
