Gotta start off with a cute story that Frank O'Neill (comptroller at the Thunderbird) tells me about his friend who didn't talk to his wife for four days because he didn't want to interrupt her.

Last Saturday's column by Hank Greenspan was wonderful - the stench of anything French should turn the stomachs of every Jew. Go ahead, girls, buy another French dress, it's sure to be exclusive because decent people everywhere won't touch French items. As one Paris designer says to a buyer from New York, "Some of my best friends are Jews."

Zoltan Farkas, in from New York, insisted that this reporter accompany him on a tour of fun in Vegas. We started with the Folies Bergere at the world famous Tropicana and Zoltan's eyes popped at the breathtaking beauty of the pultritude he saw (this means naked maedlich). Bill Bray was right about the jazz that Buddy Rich exposes us to. His reputation is Richly deserved. Then a fast run over to visit Joe Delaney at the Bonanza for entertainment and gossip plus a shot at some of the prizes they give away. (Wouldn't it be funny if me a furrier won a mink stole?) Zoltan still wasn't tired so we went to catch the Latin Fire Follies at the Thunderbird. This is a great show and we urge everyone, don't miss it. Even tho' Zoltan still wanted to go, we were too tired to continue, so over to FOXY'S for a fast lox and onions which was great, and we also met every celebrity from the Strip at Abe Fox's place because they like the food and like to shmooze with each other. As one friend, Sol Wolf said: "you got to hang around, otherwise they talk about the absent members." Found out the next day that Zoltan's last stop without me was at the Pussy Cat a Go Go. We're positive the message being brought back to New York is that this is Fun City.

Rich (Rendezvous Sports Book) Egan claims that the Sons of Erin didn't enjoy the wearing of the Green on March 17th because the Internal Revenue Service takes the green away on April 15th. Methinks we will go along with favorite CPA Irving Haut's statement that the name should be changed to Eternal Revenue.

Bob (Dunes Hotel) Rice's wife Midge (pardon me, pretty Midge) is already giving my Miriam (pardon me, pretty Miriam) instructions on special exercises to lose weight when our new
