

BARNEY GLAZER

In Hollywood

Producer Stan Seiden crapped out in Las Vegas when his revue, "The Name's the Same," at Caesars Palace bombed at the box office. As a result, Caesars rushed in Jerry Lewis to hypo attendance and exiled Seiden's "phenomenon" to its lounge Siberia.

"The Name's the Same" featured talented children of famous stars. Ironically, Gary Lewis, Jerry's son, appeared in the show, which proved that the family name may be the same but the box office attraction isn't. Dear old dad had to gap the younger generation's abyss with a bridge of senior-citizen drawing power.

Wouldn't it have proved interesting had Caesars Palace influenced Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan to substitute for his daughter, Maureen Reagan? Or brought in Deana Martin's dad, Dino, to team with Jerry Lewis?

While in Nashville, Tenn., recently for the opening of singer Roger Miller's King of the Road Motor Inn, I heard Kaye Golden sing at the Inn. A look-alike and sing-alike of Dinah Shore, Kaye intrigued me. Both were born and reared in Nashville but the similarity doesn't end there. Kaye wishes it didn't exist but I'm sure she can make it on her own in Hollywood.

If not, there should be room for two Dinah Shores (or two Kaye Golden's?).

Publicist Sheldon Saltman handled the King of the Road Inn opening. Shelley is a brilliant young man unto himself and tells Yiddish stories that make Myron Cohen's dialect talents struggle for survival.

The King of the Road Inn, named after Roger Miller's original tune, "King of the Road," is the first of a chain that will dot the country. Next one is planned for Miami. Hugh Newell Jacobsen, noted architect-designer, broke through the accepted motel mold by creating a "now" environment for the traveler.

Shelley Saltman also handles press relations for many celebrities including singer Andy Williams. One day, after she had heard her son expound for the millionth time about Williams, Shelley's beloved mother shrugged her shoulders and said, "He's your star. You have a master's degree and a law degree. You're my star."

That kind of Yiddish-momma love rivals the best qualities of chicken soup for shoring up health, confidence and the deflated ego.

Many Jewish-born may not be working at their religion but converted Sammy Davis Jr. never misses an opportunity. Introduced by Ambassador Hotel president Hugh R. Wiley at the recent wrecking party for the reconstruction of the famed Coconut Grove, Sammy introduced his father, Sam Davis Sr., kissed him on the lips, then threw the spotlight on his uncle, Will Mastin, and said: "As the Mastin Trio in 1951, we couldn't get a job. We kvell now, the way things have changed. I hope the NOW GROVE will provide the same opportunity for other talent that the old Grove gave to a young feller named Bing Crosby."

Sammy's name will appear on the NOW GROVE'S marquee thusly: "Sammy Davis Jr. Presents." Sammy should get a fat percentage for his name-lending and entertainment - advising participation. He'll also star at intervals. In his Grove presentations, Davis will partner with his business manager, Sy March, and President Hugh R. Wiley.

I phoned Rabbi Meir Cohen, of the Hillel Hebrew Academy here in Los Angeles, but Mrs. Cohen advised he was out at the time with some of his students. After expressing the hope that the good Rabbi was learning something, I told his wife, "Since this is Sunday, I also hope ahlevai that he's out marrying someone."

Mrs. Cohen, God bless her, replied, "Why should he be out marrying someone? He's already married."

At the aforementioned Grove wrecking party, Sammy Davis begged the press not to judge his future booking results too quickly, at least not until he, Marsh and Wiley had a chance to remedy errors and oversights. With that, Sammy ordered the stage curtain opened but it wouldn't work. Laughing and slapping his thigh, Sammy said, "See what I mean? But I'll tell you the same thing Hitler told the devil: 'So I made a few mistakes.'"

Did you catch the recent rerun on television of "My Favorite Martian" where a potion was used to restore the out-of-spacer to human form? Name of the potion: Nourishkeit.

PUT RUBBISH ON THE RUN

Beauty is only skin deep, according to the old saying. Sometimes clean-up around the house during the year is only skin deep too. Out where the family does most of its living, everything is neat and orderly as can be.

But how about the spare room or storage closet, the work shop or garage corner? "These are apt to be the forgotten spots," says Fire Chief Miller, "and they can be the trouble spots, where destructive, dangerous fire starts."

Put rubbish on the run in all these areas, the Chief urges. Clean out any stacks of newspapers and magazines, discarded clothing, mattresses, old furniture and lamp shades, draperies--all the clutter that collects in closets, garages, storerooms, etc.

Mr. Lester LaFortune announced that in the interest of a cleaner Southern Nevada, anyone with a paid up trash receipt from Silver State Disposal Service, may dump free at the Sunrise Mountain Dump. This free dumping service is good throughout the year.

Once a month, on special days, the Silver State Disposal Service will pick up anything left on the curb. Call 385-3464 to learn your special pick-up day.

The Southern Nevada Fire Prevention Committee hopes that everyone will use this service to make southern Nevada a cleaner place to live. Let's all get together to junk the junk.
