

EL AL FOOD IS "KOSHER CUM LAUDE"

Goulash from Vienna, Roast Beef from London, Bagels and Lox from New York -- such is the tasty and varied fare aboard El Av: All Kosher, all traditional, all a part of the heritage of Israel.

Like any other establishment serving Kosher food, El Al maintains separate kitchens -- both on the ground and in the air. (When it comes to Kashruth, no matter how high you fly, the rules apply.) Therefore each El Al jet, in a galley smaller than some Jewish cooks' stoves, carries two complete sets of dishes and cutlery, marked for meat or milk by their color and design.

El Al manages to satisfy the requirements of the laws of Kashruth while at the same time living up to the gourmet standards of an international airline by taking advantage of all the creative opportunities currently available to Jewish cooks. Thus your meat meal might be followed by a pastry with the most delicious topping -- made not of whipped cream, but of sweetened egg white!

To the anthropologist, the laws of Kashruth indicate an ancient knowledge of health principles; and correctly so. However, in the traditional Jewish interpretation of the Bible, spiritual, not physical or national health is the sole reason for their observance. The observance of Kashruth has enriched Jewish life and helped to preserve Jewish identity for thousands of years. And so, on El Al, the National Airline of Israel, the "Shalom!". The service, and the food you receive will always be strictly kosher.

AGNON FUNERAL

JERUSALEM (WNS) - - Shmuel Yosef Agnon, the Nobel Prize-winning Hebrew novelist who died at the age of 82 after a heart attack, was buried on the Mount of Olives overlooking Jerusalem under funeral arrangements made by a special Cabinet committee. Orders prohibiting burials on the Mount of Olives since its capture from Jordan during the Six-Day War were rescinded so that Mr. Agnon could be interred according to a request in his will. Government officials headed by President Zalman Shazar and Premier Golda Meir and leading figures in Israeli arts and letters attended the funeral. Memorial meetings were planned by a number of institutions.
