

PROPOSED INTERFAITH CENTER FOR UNLV CAMPUS

FOR RELIGION, LIFE AND PEACE

Clergymen of all faiths in the Las Vegas area have joined together in an Interfaith effort to raise funds for the construction of a student center on the UNLV campus. The project and building will be known as The Center for Religion, Life and Peace.

In a joint announcement of the project: The clergymen said that there is a serious and pressing need for such a facility in these trying days of campus life.

The proposed would consist of a library, counselling rooms, classrooms and a combination chapel-multi purpose room that will seat over 150.

Rev. Walter Nowak, Catholic Chaplain at UNLV said, "There are no facilities on campus to properly counsel a student except in hallways or the lounge in the Student Union Building, and it is also necessary for discussion groups to hold their meetings off campus in nearby Churches.

The on-campus living quarters will enable each denomination to have a full time chaplain available to the students.

The idea is patterned after the center on the Reno campus which has been effective in meeting the needs of the students there.

The students are presently served by the "United Campus Ministry", a branch of a national organization. The ministry includes Rev. Walter Nowak, Rev. Jerome G. Blankinship of University United Methodist Church, Rev. Clyde B. Reynolds of First Baptist Church, and Rev. George Gerard of St. Timothy's Episcopal Church in Henderson.

Rabbi Aaron Gold of Temple Beth Shalom and a lay representative of the Temple have agreed to serve on the Advisory Committee.

A fund raising campaign has been launched to raise the necessary funds. The appeal will be limited to business, industry, foundation and prominent individuals who will be asked to support the program in a substantial manner. The design and size of the building will depend on the success of the appeal. It is estimated that $500,000 is the total need to construct and furnish the Center.

Rev. Jerome Blankinship said, "Judging by the enthusiasm of the clergy, I am confident that this appeal will be the success that all of us want it to be."

Dr. Roman Zorn, President of UNLV, said, "Many benefits can result from a campus center where students may come to share with each other those values which will enrich their lives."

The proposed Center will be erected on a three acre site adjacent to the Mormon Youth Center.
