[APPY PASSOV]

JERUSALEM (WNS) --Sources here reported the Israeli government does not believe the Jarring talks will reconvene soon and is now considering "interim considering solutions" short of a peace treaty.
One plan was reported to permit the re-opening of the Suez Canal, but only if the state of belligerency between Israel and Egypt was ended.

From Paris came reports, after the meeting of UN mediator Gunnar V. Jarring and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mah-moud Riad, that Jarring said the resumption of peace talks would have to wait until Israel is willing to accept the commitment to the principle of withdrawal from

JERUSALEM (WNS) --Opposition leaders charged Premier Golda Meir Meir with political trickery after she called for immediate debate on a bill introduced by opposition leader Menachem Beigin calling for new elections.

In the ordinary course of events the bill would not be called up for debate until May. Beigin is now on a tour of the U.S. and Canada.

Opposition leaders charged that under pre-sent circumstances the bill was sure to be defeated and no similar bill could be introduced until next October. This would leave Mrs.

Meir's government free to negotiate possible withdrawal from occupied Arab territories.

HOW TO CONDUCT SEDER PG. 5

'The major issue and Middle East is the encounter between the U.S.A. and the Soviet Union...It is this global confrontation which affects and transforms local conflicts, otherwise trivial, making them both more difficult and more dangerous." This was the opening theme of testimony by Bernard Lewis, Pro-fessor of Middle East History at the Uni-versity of London, which was released by Senator Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.).

The hearing was held by the Jackson Sub-committee in its inquiry on international negotiation.

Commenting on testimony, taken March 17 in executive session, Senator Jackson said: "Professor Lewis" clear and scholarly statement should be of great help to those working on the difficult Middle East negotia-tions."

According to Lewis,

"The Soviets have the major threat in the great need to gain some sort of victory over Israel in order to convince the Arabs of the value of their protection. For this, they must persuade the United States to provide them with one -- a task that is not as difficult as it ought to be."

Professor Lewis be-Leves that Russian policy in the event that situation in the le East "could the Middle East suddenly get out of con-trol and escalate to the point of war" depends largely on how the Soviets assess the Uni-Professor ted States.

Lewis says: "Russian seeing the highly pub-licized agony of the United States, appear United States, appear to have assumed that the United States was falling apart and ceasing to be a real power capable of pursuing any kind of foreign policy in the Middle East or else-where. This assumption was reflected in

Passover Marvel

(The following information was gathered from Columbia Encyclopedia, The Story of Pesach published by a commercial matzoth company, and Tolstoi.)

How much can be added to a story that has been commemorated and told in every Jewish family during the annual Seder? True, each year the ceremonial portion of the traditional party dwindles, while the menu for the feast keeps expanding in proportion to the new products that hit the market, labled Kosher for Passover. The soup-to-nuts Seder now includes canned soups, frozen meats, all flavors of soda pop, many kinds of candy and after-dinner mints all legitimately in keeping with Passover dietary laws, and stylish.

But the story persists, nevertheless.

It had its inception long before Moses, when Jacob's son Joseph, was sold into slavery by his brothers, Joe, with his Jewish "kup" in-terpreted a dream of the king Pharaoh which saved Egypt from starvation. All Joe did was store up grain during the years of plenty for food during the years of starvation.

Generations later, another Pharaoh, panicked by interpretation of a nightmare, ordered all Jewish male babies cast into the Nile. That's when Moses was set adrift in a waterproof basket and was rescued by the Pharaoh's
