is more commonly known as Paul Anka, one of the crop of super headliners at the Circus Maximus Theatre of Caesars Palace Hotel.

We were invited recently to attend a special 2:30 A.M. Paul Anka performance for the Strip show people. It was a show that we will long remember. Just thirtyish, Paul Anka has emerged as one of our finest stage performers while his accomplishments as a popular song writer have put him in the major leagues.

His opening songs include "My Way", which he wrote for Frank Sinatra and "She's A Lady", which he put together for Tom Jones. Both were chart busters. His jazzed up version of "Ever Gentle On My Mind" puts the Glen Campbell rendition in kindergarten class.

When Mr. Anka mixes with the audience, stands up on one of the tables and belts out a medley of his written and recorded oldies, you can't help tapping a beat on your highball, His million sellers include: "Diana", "Put Your Head On My Shoulder", "Lonley Boy", "You Are My Destiny" and "Goodnight My Love", At this point the Strip's glow folks are gains wild. One of the Strip's show folks are going wild. One of his closers is another Anka favorite written by him and the theme for the movie "The Longest Day'

This Canadian-born trooper rates in our book as one of the most solid performers alive today. One that hs a fantastic list of past accomplishments to his credit and can go nowhere but up from this tall plateau that he has created.

Also on the show are the sexy and stylish Joey Heatherton and the slim, sleek, hip group known as The Unusual We, Joey was dressed in a transparent pink overgarb which is shed quickly in her act to reveal her well-published Playboy Magazine birthday suit. Her voice is surprisingly good as she runs through "Nice and Easy", songs from the play "No No Nanette" and a wild rendition of "Frankie and Johnnie". Joey dons three different costumes and is backed by a smashing team of dancers. The Unusual We (four women and four men) plant a little "California Dreaming" in your mind and have the talent to go far in the business.

Around Town....The Golden Nugget is throwing a little mullet out to the Vegas poker fraternity starting this Sept. 13. The hotel is sponsoring a $10,000 hold 'empoker tournament with all divisions ranging from $1-2 limit to $10-20 limit. Hold 'em is a wild seven card stud game with your two cards down and the next five exposed in a series of flops. Betting is usually right from the hip. All the tournament directors ask is that you play for a period of forty hours over a ten day run. Prizes and cash will be awarded to the best hands, the largest pots, etc ....

Debbie Reynolds held a lavish birthday party in town last Friday night. The list of Vegas entertainers in attendance is too long to print .... Randy Costa and his wife Ingrid Hart have put together an excellent review which may go into the main room at the Union Plaza ..... Dan Sawyer, manager of the Kim Sisters, is a regular at Food For Thought health food restaurant in Commercial Center ....

Francis, the finest maitre d' around (Sands Hotel Garden Room), was reported ill for a few days. Best wishes for a speedy recovery....The Big Wheel, a slot of laughs at Mayfair Shopping Center, is reported to be churning out their 48 cent breakfasts at a rate in which the Pentagon may be interested in studying for the armed forces. Lots of luck to Don Williams and Jay Sarno in their latest venture ....

SERVICE

I think some of the car dealers are going too far with their sales gimmicks. I see in the paper there's a dealer in Reno, who, with each purchase of an automobile, gives you two friendly witnesses for your first accident....

The most fascinating thing about the automobile industry is where they find all those empty roads to film the commercials on...

This month the Boy Scouts World Jamboree will be hosted by the Boy Scouts of Japan. Over 45,000 scouts will attend from the United States and from Canada. Did you hear about the Italian boy scout in Venice who helps little Old Ladies swim across the street?

There's a story about the scout who helped a farmer in the summer. The farmer had a lot of trouble milking the cow after that. The boy had this terrible scout habit of tying knots in everything... * * * * * * * *

Thought: Most husbands never had the problem of making decisions -- their only problem is paying for them ...

Teen-age boy to Mother: 'Stop cleaning up my room, Mom! You're disturbing the Ecology of my total environment.'

A man entered a bank, approached the manager and asked if he could be granted a loan. "Sorry," the manager informed him, "but we only lend money for home improvements!" "But this is for home improvement! I want to send my teen-aged son to Australia!'
