So last night they gave a testimonial to William Sidney Weinberger, the Short Vincent kid who made good.

Billy Weinberger, long-time proprietor of the old Kornman's Restaurant and "State of Mind" and now president of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, was brought back to Cleveland for the first Jerusalem Award Dinner, climax of this year's Israel Bond drive.

More than 750 bought a minimum of $1,000 in Israel Bonds to attend the affair at Hotel Sheraton-Cleveland. The attendees presented, besides the leading lights of Cleveland's Jewish community, a cross-section of what is left of life on Vincent Avenue N.E.

Judges, congressmen, bookmakers, lawyers, FBI men and Teamster officials mingled together for cocktails and beef, cheese and parfaits.

ON EACH TABLE was a bottle of imported champagne, and where the identifying label should be was pasted a poem identifying the bubbly as a gift to take home from Billy and Jean Weinberger.

Speakers included comedians Milton Berle and Jerry Lewis, and Gideon Saguy, deputy foreign minister of Israel. Telegram testimonials were read from Frank Sinatra and others.

It was an event for anybody who ever knew Billy Weinberger. And to hear the people talk, you would think everybody did. Here is a guy, they would say, no matter how much money he has, is liked by everybody. This guy is the most beautiful character you ever met.
