PERMANENT PEACE LESS LIKELY

NEW YORK -- The average Israeli today sees the chances of permanent peace with the Arabs as less likely than he felt one year ago.

This attitude has been revealed in a public opinion survey just conducted in Israel by Public Opinion Research of Israel Ltd. and reported here today by the American Jewish Committee.

In the survey, conducted five years after the Six Day War, two-thirds of those questioned said they believed that a peace treaty would eventually be signed with the Arabs, but only 15 percent saw this as happening within ten years. In contrast, a similar poll one year ago showed that 47 percent then expressed the belief that peace would be achieved within a ten-year period.

Eleven per cent of those queried now expressed the view that there would be no peace "in my lifetime," as compared with 7 percent who had this pessimistic view one year ago. Further, 42 percent of those questioned today said they did not know when there would be peace, while only 33 percent held this opinion one year ago.

In explaining the figures, the directors of PORI suggested that "the more time elapses without any real move toward peace in the Middle East, the more people tend to look upon a permanent peace as a faraway dream."

Distribution of the poll in this country by the American Jewish Committee is part of the organization program to develop greater understanding between Israel and the U.S.

Israelite Ads Pay

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- Acting Premier Yigal Allon told a Technion degree-awarding ceremony that Israel was doing "everything in its power" to "keep the guns silent" as the second anniversary of the August, 1970 cease-fire neared. He expressed the belief that the cease-fire would continue though he noted that "fire may be resumed as long as there is no political progress." Stating that "if warfare is resumed, it will not solve any problems and when it ends, we will be in the same situation as we are now." He urged Arab leaders, "to give peace a chance before the guns are allowed to speak again."

Former U.S. Ambassador to the UN, Charles W. Yost, after meeting with Foreign Minister Abba Eban, told newsmen in Jerusalem that while he found it "difficult to be optimistic" about the possibility of a settlement in the Middle East in the immediate future, he doubted there would be a resumption of "full-scale warfare."

(Joseph J. Sisco, U.S.

Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs, in an interview appearing in the July issue of "The New Middle East" published in London, revealed that at the Moscow summit meeting the Middle East discussion was "thorough and detailed." He also said the conflict could only be settled by the parties involved.

(In an interview broadcast over Dutch television in Amsterdam, Premier Golda Meir said the projected European Security Conference "cannot bring about a solution to the Middle East conflict." She said the Middle East nations must work out their problems by themselves.

(Dutch journalist Jan Luyten, who spent three weeks in the Middle East as a guest of the Arab league, wrote in the Amsterdam newspaper "Volkskrant" that Egypt is not prepared for another war and that most Egyptians had lost faith in Pres. Anwar Sadat. Luyten wrote that Sadat, like Nasser before him, has become "increasingly a prisoner of his own bellicose talk."

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Aliya from Western countries declined about 10 percent, Louis A. Pincus, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive reported, and he expressed concern that the decline was due, in part, to the negative attitude towards immigrants expressed by sections of the Israeli population and press.

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- After 70 meetings, the Knesset approved a State budget of $3.9 billion for fiscal 1972-1973.

LONDON (WNS) -- An Arab terrorist from Lebanon was killed in a clash with an Israeli patrol north of Kibbutz Dan in the Upper Galilee only hours after the UN Security Council voted to condemn Israel for attacks against Lebanon.

HIGHLAND MILLS, N.Y. (WNS) -- Dr. Judah J. Shapiro, president of the Labor Zionist Alliance, told the National Executive Committee, that American Zionism cannot overlook problems relating to social conditions inside Israel and the relationship between Israel and diaspora Jewry.

Nothing is Certain

There's an old adage around Wall Street that warns: "when everything points to a stock going up - watch out."

One of the keenest race track touts once cautioned: "when conditions are perfect, is when I worry most."

PRAY FOR 4,000 SYRIAN JEWS

NEW YORK (WNS) -- As the Rabbinical Council of the Syrian-Sephardic Community of America urged international action to secure for Syrian Jewry the right to emigrate and rejoin their families throughout the world, the city's 25,000 Syrian Jews marked the fast day of Shiva' Assar B' Tammuz (which commemorates the breaching of Jerusalem's walls by the Babylonians in 586 B.C.E.) with special prayers for the 4,000 Jews in Syria. Democratic Senators George McGovern of South Dakota and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, both issued appeals on behalf of Syrian Jewry. McGovern urged the Syrian government to permit Jews to emigrate and Humphrey called upon Pres. Nixon to bring the Syrian Jewry issue before the UN.

RAIZA PALATNIK, 36, OF ODESSA RECENTLY MARKED HER FIRST YEAR IN A SOVIET PRISON BY SUFFERING A HEART ATTACK. SHE WAS DENIED PERMISSION TO GO TO A HOSPITAL. WHEN HER FATHER CAME TO VISIT HER, RAIZA MANAGED TO BREAK LOOSE FROM HER GUARDS TO EMBRACE HIM BEFORE SHE WAS PULLED AWAY AND TAKEN BACK TO HER CELL.

(At the UN, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told the Security Council that Israel would continue to "pursue its efforts to free the Jews of Syria from oppression."

(In Santiago, Pres. Salvador Allende received two leaders of the Chilean Jewish community and heard their plea for his intervention. The meeting was described as "very cordial.")
