after the conclusion of the services.

NEW YORK (WNS) -- President Richard M. Nixon met with 32 American Jewish leaders to tell them that he was working through diplomatic channels over the plight of Soviet Jews who have been denied exit visas.

According to Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon informed the Jewish leaders, all of whom have publicly identified themselves as his supporters for re-election, that he does not want to "politicize" or "demagogue about" the matter or "inject it into public debate" or "engage in harsh confrontation" with either the Soviet leaders or Presidential campaign rivals.

The Presidential press secretary said that the Jewish leaders "expressed concern" about the imposition of heavy exit fees on Educated Soviet Jews seeking emigration, but voiced "Nothing but confidence" in Nixon's handling of the matter.

But a day later, two spokesmen for American Jewry made public a letter to President Nixon demanding that the U.S. use its economic power to bring about changes in the Soviet Union's treatment of its Jewish citizens who wish to emigrate.

The letter was signed by Richard Maass, chairman of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry and Jacob Stein, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations.

The letter asked the President "to make known to Soviet leaders our country's inability to enter into new and close trade relationships" unless the Soviet measures against would be emigrants "are stopped."

It was also reported this week that the White (Continued on Page 2)

Cannon Supports Jews

Sen. Howard S. Cannon

The Soviet Exit Visa Law has suddenly exploded into a major issue in Washington D.C. Whether the sudden interest in the plight of Soviet Jewry is due to political expediency during a presidential election year, or whether the long series of abuses, peaked by the ransom demand for those seeking to leave Russia, has touched the heart-strings of our leading citizens, does not matter.

What does matter is that the world now knows that honest men everywhere will not stand for inhuman regard for human rights anywhere.

We bow graciously to the courageous stand taken by our elected representatives who have gone on record to pit the United States against Russia in the righting of a wrong.

All freedom loving people everywhere, and especially every Jew in Nevada, should be grateful to men like Senator Howard Cannon, whose sentiments were stated in a telegram to the L.V. ISRAELITE:

ARAB TERRORISM

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Several days after world leaders had condemned terrorist activities at the UN General Assembly, several terrorist incidents took place over the week-end. The most serious of these was the explosion here last Friday in the downtown Supersol supermarket. Three women were injured slightly, and police detained 130 Arabs for questioning following the event.

In three other incidents last week-end: a

?? U.S. MIDEAST PEACE PLAN ??

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Authoritative sources here denied reports of a new American peace plan for the Middle East said to have been transmitted to Cairo recently.

The sources said the reports of a new plan were circulated deliberately and are without foundation.

Agence France Presse, the French news agency, reported that the US had submitted a plan similar to the original Rogers Plan to Egypt through Mohammed Hassanein Heykal, editor of the Cairo daily Al Ahram.

The news agency said the new plan has the approval of the Kremlin and several European states and that Cairo is reportedly considering it.
