Heights

BY RABBI SAMUEL SILVER

Man is a creature that can sink to great depths and soar to great heights.

Which direction will prevail is something that has us all guessing.

In Canada, for example, a religionist named A. C. Forrest is moving downward at a rapid pace. Editor of the United Church Observer, house organ for one of Canada's largest religious denominations, Mr. Forrest has been giving his readers a barrage of anti-Semitism which he has disguised, as do the Far Leftists, as anti-Zionism. He loves the Jews, you understand, but sees many faults in Israel.

The hateful Mr. Forrest has recently gotten his come-uppance from another religionist, Fr. Gregory Baum, of the University of Toronto.

Writing in the Christian Century, Rev. Baum chided not only Mr. Forrest for his venom, but painted the editor as the end-product of hundreds of years of anti-Jewishness which, he writes, "was built into Christian preaching."

Tracing the pattern of anti-Semitism in the church over the centuries, Fr. Baum declared that "we slandered the Jewish religion as it was practiced at the time of Jesus by presenting it as a corrupt, materialistic and self-centered."

In other parts of his lengthy statement, which reads like a confessional, Fr. Baum states: "Often we disguised the fact that Jesus himself was Jewish, that his mother and his disciples were Jewish, that the entire early church... was Jewish. We even blamed the Jews for the crucifixion... and eventually put the burden on the whole Jewish people."

Was Christianity then responsible for Hitler? No, but says the theologian, Christians had "generated a symbolism, a typology regarding the Jew and his 'inferiority', that was exploited by evil, power-hungry men for their own ends."

FRIDAY, APR. 13, 1973

His statement is one of the most candid of its kind ever made. The Christian Century and the writer deserve praise for scaling such heights of courage.
