

ZEL LOWMANS HONORED BY EAGLES

Assemblyman & Mrs. Zelvin D. Lowman, parents of four children and pioneer civic workers in Southern Nevada, received the Mr. & Mrs. Award at the 68th Birthday dinner of the Las Vegas Eagles Lodge.

Mrs. Lloyd Wayne, chairman of the selection committee said the Lowman family has been deeply involved in the betterment of community life during the past 20 years. She said this service and the family's performance were the reason why the Eagles salute them as "good neighbors and good citizens who by precept and example have helped build sound homes and stable family life in our community."

The Lowman's older daughter, Freda, married to Douglas Farr, Rancho High School graduate, now lives with her husband and two children in Hood River, Oregon. The older son, Jim, is married to the former Marcia Auer with whom he attended Western High in Las Vegas and California Western University in San Diego, and is working at Southwest Gas Corporation. An unmarried son, Bill, is a graduate of Western High and the University of Redlands and is teaching in the Clark County Schools, as is a younger sister, Betsy, married to Joe Herbst who attended Clark High School with her before her graduation from Lewis & Clark College in Portland.

Mr. & Mrs. Lowman have been scout unit leaders and have served respectively as president of the Boy Scout and Girl Scout Councils here. In the Presbyterian church they have been church school teachers, Christian education chairman and superintendent and have served Mariners as skipper at local, state and national levels. They were the 1960 All American family from Nevada and Mrs. Lowman was Nevada's Mother of the Year in 1970. Both are listed in Who's Who in the West and Mrs. Lowman in Who's Who of American Women.

FAVORED NATION OUT FOR RUSSIA?

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- The House Ways and Means Committee has postponed its vote on the Mills-Vanik Amendment linking most favored nation trade treatment for the Soviet Union with a relaxation in Soviet emigration policies. Secretary of State-designate Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, who was scheduled to testify against the amendment, also cancelled his appearance before the committee.

Rep. Al Ullman, (D, Ore.), the committee's chairman, noted that more time was needed to cool "the emotions" in Congress toward the Soviet Union.

In a later development it was learned that the committee may drop all references to most favored nation status from the Trade Reform Act which would mean that the Nixon Administration would be unable to grant this status to the Soviet Union despite the Soviet-American Agreement of last October.

The Senate meanwhile voted to condemn the Soviet Union for its harsh treatment of dissident intellectuals and demanded that President Nixon apply pressure during current trade and disarmament talks to end Soviet repression.

The Senate acted after Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D, Wash.) read a letter from the Soviet physicist Andrei Sakharov appealing for passage of the Jackson Amendment, a companion measure to the Mills-Vanik Amendment.

Meanwhile spokesmen for such leading American Jewish organizations as the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the American Zionist Federation, Hadassah and the Greater New York Conference on Soviet Jewry urged the House to adopt the Mills-Vanik Amendment.
