AT 'TELL IT TO WASHINGTON' BOOTH OF THE CLEVELAND JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER, OLDER ADULTS WRITE TO GOVERNMENT LEADERS TO PROTEST BUDGET CUTS FOR HUMAN NEEDS.

Austria's Shameful Deed

Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky is apparently sticking to his shameful capitulation to Arab terrorism by deciding to close down the transit center for Soviet Jews at Schoenau Castle near Vienna. This despite the outrage voiced by Jews and non-Jews throughout the world. Even a personal visit by Israeli Premier Golda Meir, not only a fellow Jew but also a fellow member of the Socialist International, failed to move him.

Dr. Kreisky claims that his decision was made to save lives -- and true it did succeed in freeing the four hostages held 14 hours by Arab terrorists. But what explanation can he offer for a sovereign nation shifting its policy in response to gangsterism? As President Nixon said; no nation, large or small, can give in to blackmail.

The Austrian Chancellor did not mitigate his deed by revealing that his government has been considering for some time closing the transit center. Nor can we be placated or reassured by his promise that individual Soviet Jews will be still allowed to come through Austria.

Austria has allowed 70,000 Soviet Jews to transit through Vienna on their way to Israel. Because of its geographical position it has served as the exit point for thousands of Jews and non-Jews fleeing the USSR and Eastern Europe. All this has earned it deserved praise for its humanitarian policy. So why change now?

Was it because of Arab or Soviet pressure? Dr. Kreisky's revelation that it was he who suggested to the terrorists that the center be closed only points to the suspicion that he was looking for an opportunity to change Vienna's policy. There is some indication that the move was in response to pressure from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries which recently set up its marketing organization in Vienna and is contemplating banking facilities there which would be a boon to the Austrian economy.

Regardless of the reasons, Austria has handed Arab terrorists their greatest political victory. A victory so great that Arab countries are openly praising the terrorist action. The fear now is that this capitulation may encourage even worse deeds.

of the war.

The quickest way to end the war is to send as much money as possible to Israel for arms, munitions, planes and supplies. The more in equipment Israel receives as quickly as possible, the better it will be for each and every one of us and all the nations of the world.

Can't you see, for Israel to lose would mean complete annihilation, which is an impossibility. The only salvation for the entire human race, before other nations are drawn into this combat, is immediate aid to Israel, who cannot lose.

Perhaps, after this war, the Jews and Arabs will negotiate a lasting peace.

We hope so.

NO FAVORED STATUS FOR RUSSIA HOUSE, SENATE YES, NIXON NIX

WASHINGTON (WNS) --By a voice vote, the House Ways and Means Committee has adopted the Mills-Vanik Amendment requiring that the Soviet Union relax emigration restrictions on Jews and others before it can be granted most favored nation trade benefits by the U.S.

An identical measure authored by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, is pending in the Senate where it has over-whelming support.

President Nixon, however, later gave assurances to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko that his administration would try hard to get most favored nation status for the Soviet Union. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger earlier warned at a press conference that as a result of the House committee's action "the most serious questions" would have to be raised, not only by the Russians but by other countries about the ability of the U.S. to fulfill its promises. Kissinger said there were limits to Washington's ability to pressure the Soviet Union to make internal changes without risking damages to improved relations with Moscow.

Tarrytown, N. Y., where the rabbi is Paul Siegel houses an Orthodox Congregation.

So does the Reform temple in Manhattan where the rabbi is the president of the Association of Reform Rabbis of the area, Robert Lehman.

In Olean, N. Y., there's a synagogue, which contains both traditionalist and liberal groups, worshipping at different hours under the same roof.

In various parts of the country, Conservative and Reform synagogues are merging.

In other communities, the various synagogues are working together for the benefit of Hebrew education or youth group guidance.

The most recent and most heart-warming example of what might be called Jewish ecumenism occurred in Akron, Ohio.

The Orthodox shul was forced to sell its building and was left without a place to worship for the holy days.

To their rescue came Temple Israel, the Reform congregation, which gathers for the holidays in a theatre in order to accommodate the entire membership at one time.

Temple Israel offered its sister-synagogue, known as Anshe Sefarad its building gratis.

There, the Orthodox services took place, with men and women sitting separately.

Spearheading this example of Jewish togetherness was Temple Israel's rabbi, Dr. Morton Applebaum, a native of Toronto who has long exemplified the ecumenical spirit in Jewish life.

Rhapsodizing about their lucky break, the Orthodox Akronites, in their bulletin, wrote: "We are most grateful to Temple Israel, to its distinguished rabbi, to its Board of Trustees, for this noble act of loving kindness."

The noble act offsets some of the bitterness abroad.
