

A Rabbi Honored

BY RABBI SAMUEL SILVER

Can rabbis raise funds? They certainly can. The heads of the United Jewish Appeal have often included rabbis. In many congregations, the laymen count on the rabbi to inspire people to give to the support of the shul.

One rabbi said the modern temple is made up not only of brick and mortar, but of the blood and bones of the rabbi, who frequently spearheads the "pitch" for revenue.

LAS VEGAS ISRAELITE
One of the most glistening rabbinical fund-raisers is Dr. Leon Kronish, of Temple Beth Shalom, in Miami Beach.

Ordained by Stephen Wise, Rabbi Kronish is eloquent, energetic, and effervescent. Thousands of his parishoners and visitors to the great Florida resort relish his "pulpit-ations". He is also a person of surpassing wit. As an after-dinner speaker few in the world can match Rabbi Kronish in the clever phrase, the satiric thrust, the ingenious verbal exposition.

Recently kudosed in his 29th anniversary with a grateful congregation, Rabbi Kronish is also being currently honored by the Bonds of Israel organization.

Every leader of the Jewish State knows that Rabbi Kronish has induced American Jews to invest millions of dollars in the Bonds effort. At glistening dinners in elegant hotels, in the privacy of office solicitations with people of wealth, in lectures and at parlor meetings, the rabbi has made countless individuals aware of the joy that comes from sharing in the enterprise of strengthening the State of Israel through the channel of investment.

If its fun, or funds, Rabbi Kronish shines. We join others in saluting an outstanding builder of the bridge between our democracy and the brave Jewish republic out there in the Middle East.
