The art works selected for the annual UNICEF card sales are chosen for their artistic merit and universality of appeal, without inquiry into the political or religious background of the artist. All artists offer their works as a contribution to the United Nations Children's Fund. In the past, such renowned talents as Pablo Picasso, Andrew Wyeth, Henri Matisse, Henry Moore, Salvador Dali, Rene Magritte and Grandma Moses have contributed paintings to UNICEF. The 1973 collection includes works from Georgia O'Keefe, the Vatican Collection and museums of Columbia, Spain, Canada and Peru. Four American painters, as well as artists from Denmark, Burundi, Iran, France, Turkey, Austria, Germany and other countries are also represented.

In Las Vegas the UNICEF holiday cards may be obtained at Charleston Plaza Mall and Ronzone's in the Mall.
