DISENGAGEMENT TALKS BEGIN

GENEVA (WNS) -- The disengagement talk between Israel and Egypt began here with both sides discussing "principles of disengagement," according to a United Nations spokesman.

He said these talks "would facilitate discussions in the future." Each delegation constituting of two officers and a civilian sat at each side of a U-shaped delegation with United Nations Truce Chief Lt. Gen. Ensio Sillasvuo at the center. The Israeli delegation is headed by Gen. Mordechai Gur, the Israeli military attache in Washington. He is assisted by Col. Dov Sion and Foreign Ministry official David Ramin. The Egyptian delegation is headed by Maj. Gen. Tahal el Magdoub.

Prior to his appointment, Gur, a 43-year old Jerusalem-born former paratroop officer, expressed his optimism about the peace talks. "I am not afraid that Arabs and Israelis cannot live together in peace and harmony." Noting that many of his boyhood companions were Arabs he stressed that "We who have always lived with Arabs know we can have peace with them and they know they can with us."

Meanwhile in Jerusalem, sources said Israel is prepared to allow an Egyptian force to remain on the east bank of the Suez Canal as part of a disengagement agreement but only if such a force is reduced in size and strength so

Greenspun Cops a Plea

Howard Hughes was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury in Las Vegas.

Let's set the record straight at the outset. If Hughes is found guilty he deserves any punishment prescribed by a court of law. We point out, as we have suggested to Sun columnist Paul Price on many occasions, an indictment is not a determination of guilt. Instead, one is presumed innocent until adjudged guilty.

Four others were indicted with Hughes, including Robert Maheu, deposed chief of Hughes Nevada operations. This makes Maheu a co-defendant with his former boss, who he is suing for breach of employment contract.

Named as a co-conspirator was Sun publisher Hank Greenspun. Because he was not indicted, Greenspun's designation smacks of an immunity deal in return for testimony he has rendered against the others. Greenspun is to the Nevada mess, what John Dean is to Watergate.

We would be very content at this time to let the matter stand without further comment until it is settled fairly and squarely in a court of law. But Greenspun, being a publisher, preferred to argue his case in the newspapers, and as usual, the more he opens his mouth the more he puts his foot in. So let's analyze the distorted view Greenspun is feeding his readers and the general public.

He told CBS News he was an "innocent dupe" and "had no prior knowledge the Hughes interests were trying to depress the price of the airline." This statement does not jell with what Greenspun told local reporters immediately after the story broke.

At that time Greenspun explained he had called Bob Maheu in San Francisco where Air West directors were meeting, to get a beat on the story if there was a sale. Greenspun said Maheu advised him to sell his stock. Greenspun said he answered: "What, and take a loss?" Whereupon Greenspun told the reporters that Maheu assured him not to worry, "the man" will take care of you.

Immediately thereafter, Maheu being interviewed by the same reporters and asked to respond to Greenspun's accusation, replied, "no comment."

The "no comment" response was interesting, because Maheu added he was happy the truth was emerging. If so, it appeared that Maheu's "no comment" did nothing in evolving the truth.

From Hughes spokesmen, illegal involvement was denied. They claimed he saved an airline from bankruptcy, and added: "We do not understand (apart from obvious self-serving prejudice of certain witnesses whose testimony was taken by the grand jury) what facts could possibly support the assertion of the indictment." It was further stated that Hughes could not possibly benefit in any way by reason of an alleged manipulation of Air West stock.

Thus we have statements by Maheu, Hughes and Greenspun. But Greenspun had much more extensive explanations of his implications. Had he just stated he was guilty, that he was copping a plea and was blowing the whistle on the others, we'd understand and even forgive on the grounds that he was paying his penalty to society one way or another.

But Greenspun prefers to pull an Agnew, who pleaded guilty and came on national TV to prove his innocence. We won't stand for
