

Metzenbaum

by RABBI SAMUEL SILVER

The newest United States Senator, Howard Metzenbaum will be comfortable in his Legislative role.

After all, he was leader of the majority in the Ohio Senate at 28!

A labor lawyer, he displayed a remarkable business acumen and became quite wealthy. Once, he owned Avis!

But the new senator, appointed to that post by Gov. Gilligan, to fill the term of Sen.

Saxhe, the new Attorney-General, has remained a humanitarian and a liberal.

He is also a person much at home with his Jewishness. He is a stalwart of Fairmount Temple, Cleveland. Among his national Jewish involvements are his assumptions of important posts with the American Jewish Congress and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (where he was an ideological partner of the late Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath).

Howard Metzenbaum has a fine family. He is devoted to that brave Mideast democracy known as Israel. He is a conscientious servant of God and man who accepts the Hebrew credo that a man is to be judged not by what he has but by what he does with what he has.

In his campaign (in which he lost to Bob Taft Jr. by a hair) his slogan was "Let's Go, Metz." It is a cry which can now be taken up by all Americans.

In a Nutshell

BY RABBI SAMUEL SILVER

One characteristic of our times is man's ability to compress ideas into brief statements. Advertising slogans and bumper stickers illustrate this knack of verbal shrinkage.

"For the rest of your life" is the way a couch is touted.

"Where your money talks," is the commercial for a bank.

And think of the prevalence of bumper stickers which pleaded with the U.S. to do something for POW's and MIA's.

The Watergate has inspired a host of stickers such as "No amnesty for Watergate!" and "Kennedy for '76; he's already rich."

There is a sign on an antique shop: "Remains to be seen." And there is a shop which mains to be seen." And there is a shop which calls itself "Den of Antiquity."

Outside of a church on a July day there was the legend: "Recreation is right up our alley."

And that Lion safari outfit has big signs to the effect, "Trespassers Will Be Eaten."

And one of the great verbalists of our day, Groucho Marx, once described a woman: "She speaks 120 words a minute with gust up to 160."
