bitter opposition of the party's "young guard." The reversal by Dayan and Peres was attributed to the suddenly developed security threat on the Syrian cease-fire line although some Israelis believe that the threat was contrived to give the two Rafi leaders a way of saving face. Dayan will continue to serve as Defense Minister and Peres will head the new Ministry of Information. His former Ministry has been split up with Communication going to Aharaon Uzzan, the Moshav leader, and Transportation to an as yet unnamed Laborite.

Yitzhak Rabin, the former Chief of Staff and Ambassador to Washington, who was to have been Defense Minister if Dayan had continued to refuse to serve, was named Labor Minister. Other new ministers are: Haim Zadok, Justice; Shlomo Rosen, Absorption; former Tel Aviv Mayor Yehoshua Rabinowitz, Housing, and Gideon Hausner, who will become the Independent Liberal Party's second Cabinet member, Minister-Without-Portfolio.

In addition to Mrs. Meir, other Cabinet members retaining their posts are Yigal Allon, Deputy Premier and Education Minister; Abba Eban, Foreign Affairs; Pinhas Sapir, Finance; Victor Shemtov, Health; Haim Gvati, Agriculture; Haim Barlev, Commerce and Industry; Shlomo Hillel, Police; Moshe Kol, Tourism, and Israel Galili, Minister-without-Portfolio. Mrs. Meir has left open the NRP's three former Cabinet posts--Religion, Welfare and Interior--along with a Minister-Without-Portfolio spot for the Party.

The NRP's leadership has apparently agreed to a Labor-proposed compromise deferring the "Who Is A Jew" issue for a year. It acted in spite of the objections of the Orthodox religious establishment and a warning from its spiritual authority, Rabbi Tzvi Kook, that he would dissociate himself from the party if it entered the government. The party's executive committee was upheld by a slim five percent margin at a stormy meeting of the enlarged executive.

However, the NRP's young guard headed by MKs Zevulun Hammer and Yehuda Ben Meir obtained sufficient signatures to ask for a central committee meeting to decide the issue. They also got an injunction from the party court prohibiting the NRP from joining the government until the central committee meets.

ISRAEL COMPLETELY OUT OF SUEZ

TEL AVIV (WNS)-- Israel has completely evacuated the banks of the Suez Canal some six years and seven months after the Israeli presence was first established there.

After handing over their positions to the United Nations Emergency Force Israel moved back to new positions some 14 miles eastward in the heart of the Sinai desert. The last Israeli vehicle to leave the zone was a half-track carrying three soldiers. They left behind a bullet-punctured sign saying "Shalom" in Hebrew, Arabic and English. Someone added "au Revoir."

The next morning Egyptian army units crossed the canal to take over the evacuated zone. Israeli officials reported that the Egyptians have demolished all missile sites built on the east bank of the canal.

The Israelis were given permission to continue to search for bodies of soldiers believed killed in the areas now under Egyptian control. The new Israeli lines run just west of the Jidi and Mitla passes. The Egyptian and Israeli zones are separated by a buffer area manned by UNEF troops.

Upon the completion of the fifth and last stage of the disengagement agreement, UNEF commander Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo of Finland, said he had seen "a very definite change in attitude" by Egypt and Israel toward each other in recent weeks. He said there was more confidence than before and this augured well for the future. He said it was "very reassuring to see how both parties had complied with the agreement to the letter."
