Passover 1974

BY MRS. CHARLOTTE JACOBSON
(Chairman, World Zionist Org., Amer., Sec.)

Although Passover is traditionally the most joyous of Jewish festivals, we approach the celebration this year with a measure of sadness and soberness. Because the Yom Kippur invasion of Israel by the Arab states, is still fresh in our minds and the serious implications still confront Israel six months

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has been officially named by the Cabinet to represent Israel in the talks in Washington with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on disengagement with Syria. No date has been set as yet for his departure.

In New York, Foreign Minister Abba Eban, appearing on ABC-TV, said the "natural thing" would be for Dayan to speak directly to the Syrian representative. Kissinger is scheduled to meet separately with the representatives of the two belligerents.

Eban said Israel will accept any procedure that would lead to an agreement. But the Israeli official said Kissinger would probably have to make another trip to the Middle East before a peace settlement is reached.

He praised both "American prestige and Kissinger's skills" for progress toward peace in the Middle East.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem insist that both sides must make concessions and they say Israel will demand a buffer zone manned by the United Nations Emergency Force similar to the one separating the two sides on the Egyptian front.

Israel is reported to have rejected absolutely a Syrian demand that disengagement include Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights town of Juneitra captured by Israel in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin said in a newspaper interview that the talks with Syria will be tough, prolonged and accompanied by threats of war and acts of war. Rabin, former Chief of Staff and Ambassador to the United States, said Syrian President Hafez Assad cannot permit himself to achieve less than did Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, and Israeli withdrawal from the lines established in the Six-Day War.

TELL TALES

"One Man Plus The Truth

Abe Rosenbloom

A YOUNG ABE

Those of us who knew Abe Rosenbloom took him for granted as a soft spoken, unobtrusive little man, who somehow managed to be around when a statistic was happening.

Upon reflection, more than a year after Abe passed away on Nov. 30, 1972, and upon receiving information of the disposition of his estate, we realize that he was a most unusual, soft, kind and considerate man in what is generally believed to be a cold, hard city. For a hustling and bustling Las Vegas, Abe was probably the slowest man in town. But he was always on hand, at synagogue services, minions, weddings, births, bar and bat mitzvahs, and especially funerals.

It appeared that everybody knew Abe, but few, if any, had the slightest inkling of his background. He was just a "hello," "how are you" and "good bye" when you met him in a hotel lobby, at the Santa Anita race book, in the temple, at a supermarket, at a mortuary or on the street.

In a belated, post-mortem investigation we learned that Abe had depth in many areas. His goal in life apparently was to accumulate friends. Long before he came to Las Vegas more than 23 years ago, Abe was a professional prize fighter often seen in the company of former heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey.
