

Passover Message

By Melvin Dubinsky
Chairman, United Israel Appeal

On Passover night, we join together to recall the deliverance of the past and to rejoice in our unity, a unity which has insured our deliverance from all afflictions over the centuries.

As we sit with one another across the Seder table this year--the year of the Yom Kippur war, we must reflect on the meaning of deliverance. The joining of hands of Jews around the world is making possible the deliverance of tens of thousands of Soviet Jews from lives of oppression in an unparalleled historical epic of our times. More thousands of Jews from many countries are enabled every year to find dignity and freedom in the promised land, because of the unity of the great Jewish family of which they are a part.

This Passover, we may be proud of the fact that the American Jewish community responded to human needs in Israel in the aftermath of the Yom Kippur war, with a level of support proving a true understanding of the dimensions of the needs.

But the pride in our accomplishments we may so justly feel must in turn foster a determination that having done this much, we must do much more. In the wake of the cruel Yom Kippur war, with a level of support proving a true understanding of the dimensions of the needs.

But the pride in our accomplishments we Yom Kippur war, Jewish Agency humanitarian programs in Israel are being taxed far beyond their capacity. Immigrants are coming to Israel only to find they must wait for available housing, wait for vital retraining programs which will enable them to find jobs and become productive members of their new society.

The aged among them find it difficult to obtain the special services they so urgently need, and their children in many cases are denied the high quality education so necessary to their futures. Many other immigrants of former years are experiencing similar problems, overcrowding in cramped housing, a lack of educational opportunities, a shortage of social and medical services, to name a few.

What we have begun, we must sustain. We are responsible to the. We must meet our obligations to them by redoubling our efforts and our support.

This is the special night, different from all other nights. This is a special year for the Jewish people, different from all other years. The Year of the Yom Kippur war. On this special night, we must pledge once more to the people of Israel that we are with them in their hour of need; that we will do every thing necessary to help sustain them at this time when they need us most.
