Rabbi David Rebibo, of Phoenix, Arizona will visit Las Vegas May 9 - 12. Rabbi Rebibo has been instrumental in the leadership of the United Jewish Appeal campaign in Phoenix and will be honored as Man of the Year, May 23, at the dinner of the Greater Phoenix Jewish Federation.

The only running El Cortez Casino executive Jack (Tiger) Novak does is from the dice pit to the slot machines to pay off $2,000, $1,000, $500 and $200 jackpost, but that didn't stop him from traveling to Des Moines with his lovely wife, Bonnie, to witness the Drake Relays, and incidentally visit with their pretty daughter, Linda, a sophomore at Drake University.

Mike Mottus, he's slot manager at the Flamingo, and his wife, Clara, are very proud their daughter, Judy, a scholarship student who will graduate from U.N.L.V. this month, was one of the first selected to teach at Pat Diskin Elementary School which will open in September. Judy, a native Las Vegas, has been student teaching at Red Rock Elementary School.

Nat Goldstein, who started as a messenger at the New York Times fifty years ago, retired late last year as special assistant to publisher Arthur Achs Sulzberger, after serving 23 years as circulation-director; doubling the daily sale to 1,000,000. But Nat could not sit still. He's teamed with another old-time Timesman, Irv Taubkin as consultants in corporate communications and public relations. They're with Weintraub and FitzSimons, 488 Madison Avenue in New York. Boy could Vegas use their talents.

Registrar of Voters Stan Colton would like to remind all voters within Clark County who will be out of town on May 21st when the Special School Bond Election will be held that they may vote absentee at the Clark County Election Department Office.
