

DISAGREEMENT ON VISA APPLICATIONS

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- President Nixon in pushing for a trade agreement with Soviet Union told Congressional leaders that the Soviet government has been receiving less visa applications and that he believes that without a trade agreement the USSR has a right to refuse applications.

This was reported to reporters by Sen. Hugh Scott (R, Pa.), the Senate Minority Leader. The National Conference on Soviet Jewry in New York said that visa applications have been running an average of 4000 per month during the first six months of 1974 as compared to about 4500 last year, but this drop was negligible in view of an 40 percent cutback in emigration and the increased harassment and arrests of applicants.

NCSJ chairman Stanley Lowell said that while his organizations supports detente and trade the burden for ending the harrassment of Soviet Jews rests with the USSR.

Meanwhile Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D, Wash.) said the Soviet Union will not get most favored nation trade status until "it is possible for a person to apply for a visa and not lose his job or have his child treated in a discriminatory way." He stressed that the number of people who leave the USSR "can be worked out."
