

Rosh Hashana, 5735

BY ELEANOR MARVIN
Pres. Natl. Council of Jewish Women

"We are living through a time of upheaval in the world, which has caused all our values to be questioned and tested. It is vital for us, as the New Year approaches, to look to our Jewish heritage of laws and tradition for both spiritual and practical guidance."

The New Year 5735 is being celebrated at a crucial moment, when hopes for peace and progress are evident both in the United States and in Israel.

"The High Holy Days provide us with a unique opportunity each year to reconsider our role and responsibilities as Jews; we must now ask ourselves what we can contribute to the welfare of others, and how we can improve the quality of Jewish lives throughout the world."

"NCJW is once again reaffirming its dedication to priorities such as juvenile justice; equal rights for women under the law and in practice; protection of constitutional rights; and child care and education. And we will continue to reach out to our Jewish brethren wherever they are, particularly in countries where they suffer hardship, such as Russia, Syria and Iraq."

The National Council of Jewish Women, founded in 1893, is one of the oldest major American Jewish organizations. Its 100,000 members are committed to a broad program of community service, social and legislative action and education here and in Israel.
