

PLO RECOGNIZED AT U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (WNS) -- The UN General Assembly voted 105-4 to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and invite it to participate in the debate on the Palestine question scheduled to be held after the U.S. general elections in November.

The United States, Israel, the Dominican Republic and Bolivia voted against the resolution while Canada, Britain, Germany, the Netherlands, were among the 20 members abstaining. Among those voting in favor were France, Italy and Jordan.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah told reporters after the vote: "This marks the surrender of the UN to murder and barbarism. Israel will have no part in this surrender." But he said Israel will continue to seek peace in the Middle East.

Before the vote, Tekoah warned the Assembly that recognition of the PLO would threaten the diplomatic process toward a solution of the Mideast conflict, encourage international terrorism and make "a mockery of the United Nations and of its Charter."

U. S. Ambassador John Scali explaining the U.S. vote stressed that the U.S. is seeking a peace that is just for all parties in the Mideast which "must be negotiated with utmost care and must lead to an overall settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, at the heart of which we recognize lies the Palestinian problem."

The Arab delegations and their allies were jubilant. Two PLO representatives are already in New York, Sadat Hasan and Dr. Nabeel Shaath. Shortly after the vote, Shaath pressed by reporters for the PLO's aims, declared "the PLO 'is going to act responsibly' from now on but declared that violence would be continued inside Israel to 'liberate our homeland.'"

ASSISTING CONVERTS

With one of every three American Jewish marriages now involving a partner of non-Jewish origin, the Jewish community must "come to grips" with growing demand for conversion to Judaism, asserts Rabbi Allen Maller, Culver City, California, president of the budding National Jewish Hospitality Committee which already comprises more than 85 Conservative, Orthodox, Reconstructionist and Reform rabbis across the country, Rabbi Maller states.

The function of the new organization is to welcome and assist converts to Judaism and serve other non-Jews, who, for marital or personal reasons, have an interest in this ancient faith.

The headquarters of the National Jewish Hospitality Committee, 427 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia 19106, is enlisting rabbis and laymen from all segments of Judaism throughout the United States and Canada. But the committee's chief goal is to develop the "full potential of involvement in Jewish community life by husbands and wives of non-Jewish origin and to accommodate and assist the burgeoning number of people interested in Judaism for reasons besides marriage whether for conversion or not."
