

JEWISH NEWS BRIEFS

NEW YORK -- The appointment of Rabbi David H. Panitz, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel of Patterson, as Chairman of the Joint Commission on Rabbinic Placement under the auspices of The Jewish Theological Seminary of America, The Rabbinical Assembly and The United Synagogue of America was announced by Rabbi Mordecai Waxman, President of The Rabbinical Assembly.

PHILADELPHIA -- Dr. Haim Gervaryahu, an outstanding Biblical scholar, comes here from Israel to join the faculty at The Dropsie University.

LOS ANGELES -- A special effort to recruit qualified Jewish personnel for management positions in the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its member companies is currently under way as a result of consultations between top officers of AT&T and representatives of the American Jewish Committee.

LOS ANGELES -- The executive head of the American Jewish Committee, Bertram H. Gold, cautioned that huge Arab investments in the U.S. economy, financed by skyrocketing oil income, might be giving the Arab states "the power to manipulate our economy, our diplomacy and our politics."

HAIFA -- Special training in the operation of kidney dialysis equipment is currently being given to students of the Medical School of the Technion - Israel Institute of Technology, in order to help alleviate a serious manpower shortage in the Nephrology Department of the Rambam University Hospital, which is adjacent to the School.

NEW YORK -- Nearly 3,000 New York City policemen are learning about Jews, Jewish observance and Jewish neighborhoods through "A Guide to the Jewish Community of New York," prepared by the American Jewish Congress.

NEW YORK -- For the first time in 86 years and 5,375 articles, the National Geographic magazine -- in its November issue -- tells its nine million readers it "erred" in an earlier article. In a new column by editor Gilbert M. Grosvenor, the Geographic states that its April article on Damascus "failed to reflect the true situation" of Syrian Jews.

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- A Hebrew University study has found that more than half of the senior officers in the Israeli army take a clearly "doveish" view toward Arabs and support the recognition of Palestinian self-determination.

elected in a much closer race than forecast.

The issue of support for Israel was a key factor in enabling Javits to overcome a strong challenge from former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark, an anti-establishment Democrat.

Stone, a 46-year-old lawyer and former Secretary of State in Florida and State Senator, defeated Republican Jack Eckard a drugstore chain owner and Dr. Dan Grady of the American Party.

In the House, eleven incumbents were returned including Republican Benjamin Gilman and Democrat Bella Abzug, Elizabeth Holtzman, Edward I. Koch, Benjamin S. Rosenthal and Lester Wolff, all of New York; Democrats Joshua Eilberg, Pennsylvania; Edward Mezvinsky, Iowa; Sidney Yates, Illinois, and William Lehman, Florida, and Republican Sam Steiger, Arizona. The 12th incumbent, New York Democrat Bertram Podell withdrew from the race after involvement in criminal indictment but Democrat Stephen J. Solarz, a Jew, was elected to Podell's seat.

Democrats James Scheuer and Richard L. Ottinger in New York and Abner Mikvah in Illinois were elected to House seats they had previously held. Georgia elected a Jewish congressman for the first time, Democrat Elliott Levitas, who defeated a Republican incumbent in Atlanta's suburbs. In Maryland, Mrs. Gladys Noon Spellman, a Democrat of suburban Laurel, became the third Jewish woman to be elected to the new Congress. Other new Jewish congressmen are; Democrat Frederick Richmond, New York; Republican Willis D. Gradison, Ohio; and Democrats John R. Krebs and Henry A. Waxman, both California.
