

IMMIGRATION TO ISRAEL DECLINES
 JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Concern over the decline of immigration was expressed at a meeting of the World Zionist Organization Executive here. Rabbi Mordechai Kirschblum, associate director of the Jewish Agency's immigration department, reported that during the period Jan.-Oct. 1974, 25,578 immigrants arrived in Israel as compared to 39,382 for the same period last year.

He said aliya was declining from all countries except Britain.

Egyptian President Sadat reportedly told Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in Cairo that the door to progress, presumably negotiations, is still open. In Damascus, Kissinger said he and Syrian President Hafez Assad have resolved to maintain their present contacts and continue them in the near future. Israeli sources said the primary American aim is to keep the momentum toward peace going.

Kissinger completed two rounds of talks with Israeli leaders at the weekend, assuring them that despite confusing reports, the U.S. did not intend to pressure Israel to conduct talks with the PLO. The understanding was that this problem was not urgent, the main task currently being to get Israeli-Egyptian talks resumed, with the future of the West Bank left for a later stage.

No official announcement was made but it was reported that Kissinger said Egypt was willing to enter a new round of talks with Israel for a further withdrawal from Sinai and that King Hussein of Jordan believed that in a few months, the PLO would have to return to him the mandate to conduct West Bank negotiations with Israel.
