INCREASED AID FOR UJA

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- World Jewry needs to make a more intensive effort to increase contributions to the United Jewish Appeal despite adverse economic conditions in the various countries, Jewish Agency Executive Chairman Pinhas Sapir told the Executive. Sapir praised the work of UJA leaders in the United States and Keren Hayesod in other countries, noting that UJA collected more than $222 million in 1974 and Keren Hayesod more than $167 million. He said while this was a commendable achievement it did not meet Israel's needs and substantive cuts are needed in the Jewish Agency's budget.

Earlier, Jewish Agency Treasurer Leon Dulzin, said that although the 1975 UJA campaign in the U.S. was doing relatively well, some $500 million in pledges to Israel by world Jewry had still to come in. He said he was confident the money would eventually be made available. Speaking to Jerusalem Post staff members, Dulzin said that the American recession was felt in the drop in pledges by large donors and in the wide gap between 1974 pledges and cash payments.

But he said the new campaign was making good progress, especially among small and middle-range contributors.
