JEWISH STUDIES UP
 NEW YORK (WNS) -- Prof. Moshe Davis, founder and former chairman of the Institute of Contemporary Jewish Studies of Hebrew University, told a meeting of the Institute's International and American Planning Committees, that the number of Jewish students taking Jewish studies courses on campuses is increasing not only in the United States, but throughout the Diaspora.

Davis, who is still a professor at the Institute, stressed however, that they are only a small portion of the Jewish students in colleges and universities. Yehuda Bauer, chairman of the Institute, said the school must not only do research and collect data but teach the teachers of Jewish studies.

Courses on the Holocaust are among the most popular on the it away." Williams said "We have yet to get the feeling or urgency of concern and action. There is almost no concern over the impact of the Arab boycott."

Meanwhile, the B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League has asked President Ford to "order immediate corrective action" by American Banks and steamship lines of alleged collusions with the Arab boycott in a "daily violation" of U.S. maritime laws and other federal statutes. A letter to Ford from ADL national chairman Seymour Graubard was accompanied by sample forms on steamship letterheads attesting that a vessel in which goods were shipped to customers in Arab countries is not on the Arab blacklist, not of Israeli origin, and will not call at Israeli ports.

James E. Smith, the U. S. Comptroller of the Currency, has warned banks against accepting the Arabs' anti-Jewish rules in dealings, and against accepting large deposits or loans by Arab investors that require discrimination against Jews.

campuses, according to Abraham J. Karp, president of the American Jewish Historical Society and professor of history and religious studies at Rochester University, and Franklin H. Littell, professor of religion at Temple University. Dr.

Littell said more Christian theological schools are adding courses on the Holocaust, including the Harvard Divinity School.
