Passover 1975

By Mrs. Charlotte Jacobson
Chairman, Amer. Sec. World Zionist Org.

Passover is the beginning of the history of the Jewish people as a people; with the Exodus from ancient Egypt the tribes merged into a nation, and the millenia-long adventure began. As we read the Haggadah at the Seder service we retell the story and retrace the steps our forefathers took on the long road from enslavement to freedom, from the building of cities for Pharaoh to the building of Israel for our own people. And so we rejoice on Passover, happily sharing in the age-old success story of our people.

In the cause of freedom we raise our voices on behalf of Soviet Jewry, whose Exodus is still more promise than fulfillment, and for our brothers in Syria, whose Exodus is still completely forbidden.

The Egyptian story itself is still incomplete; modern Egypt has an historic opportunity to add a "happy ending" to the account of our relationships; she has a chance to make peace, at long last, with the people she once welcomed happily, then enslaved and finally released, reluctantly.

As we observe the Seder ritual and drink to the ancient liberation, we pray for a modern liberation: from the nightmare of war and threat of war, and for the birth of a new era of peace and construction.

Passover Message

By Jack D. Weller, Chairman
Amer. Jewish Joint Dist. Comm.

"Those who are hungry, let them come and eat. Those who would celebrate the Passover, let them join us." With this eloquent sermon of man's innate goodness and the spiritual kinship that has kept the Jews united through centuries of dispersion, the Haggadah, the story of Passover, begins.

This year, as we rejoice over the thousands of Jews who came out of the Soviet Union, we agonize with those who have not yet been permitted to join the exodus, who still struggle for freedom. We do what we can and we pray for the Jews still trapped in hostile Arab countries.

May this year's festival of freedom be enhanced by the promise of peace in Israel and around the world. May it find the pangs of hunger eased everywhere in the world where millions face starvation.

We of the Joint Distribution Committee will continue to work toward that Messianic day when the persecuted will be rescued, the homeless sheltered, the starving fed, the sick healed and the children educated. To those who have made our work possible by their generosity and their devotion we, the officers and directors of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, send Passover greetings in behalf of the hundreds of thousands of Jews overseas who will have joyous Passover Seders because they cared.

NEW YORK -- The institutions of Reform Judaism have set aside the period between the Jewish holidays of Passover to Shavuot for a major effort by congregations and individuals to alleviate the "plague of world famine which now afflicts 400,000,000 of our fellow human beings."
