

CANAL OPENING

matter up at the next stage of political negotiations.

But in Washington while the State Department confirmed there were secret understandings in the agreement it refused to say whether passage for Israeli cargo through the canal was one of them. Malcolm Toon, the U. S. Ambassador-designate to Israel told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that "certain private commitments" were made in the agreement on shipping and "I simply don't know" whether Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will permit Israeli-bound cargo through.

Meanwhile, Israeli Chief of Staff Gen. Mordechai Gur predicted the reopening of the canal would usher in a period of calm in the Middle East. He said Egypt was not likely to go to war while the canal was open and Syria and Jordan would not go to war without the participation of Egypt.

ISRAEL REDUCES TROOPS, ARMS IN SINAI

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Israel moved armor, artillery, infantry and aircraft missiles back beyond the firing range of the Suez Canal after Premier Yitzhak Rabin announced the unilateral Sinai action in what was seen as a gesture toward Egypt's reopening of the canal.

Rabin announced the surprise move as President Ford was meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Salzburg, Austria. Rabin insisted that the move was not taken as a result of any information coming out of Salzburg. He said it was an independent and unilateral move "based on our assessment that Israel should do something -- involving a measure of risk -- to demonstrate our contribution in light of the canal's reopening, toward pacification of the region."

The thinning out included reducing by half the 7000 soldiers allowed in the "limited forces zone" east of the canal, pulling back 15 of the 30 permitted tanks and all artillery within 32 kilometers of the canal, and all missiles from a 40-mile strip east of the canal.

The move was welcomed in Israel and abroad. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a press conference in Salzburg that Rabin's announcement was a "constructive move." But, he added, "no unilateral step can be decisive, but it is helpful."

However, the Soviet Union in an article in its official news agency, Tass, claimed the Israeli move was nothing more than propaganda "to mislead the international public."
