SYRIA, JORDAN PACT AGAINST ISRAEL

By David Benarone

UNITED NATIONS (WUP) -- The 'unexpected' has happened. Two former enemies Syria's radical Assad and Jordan's 'moderate' King Hussein, have joined hands in forming a military pack aimed against Israel.

With such a joint pact established, giving Damascus' military machine access to Jordan's lengthy frontier with Israel, Assad could well afford to have extended the UNDOF mandate for another six months -- enough of time to consolidate his forces with Jordan's.

In both Assad's and Hussein's minds, undoubtedly, is a fifth round. This, assuredly, was uppermost in their thoughts as the two former enemies met in Aaman last week. According to a report to the New York Times by Henry Tanner, Hussein, after giving Assad a rousing welcome, flew the Syrian on an inspection flight over all of Jordan's Army positions facing the Israeli posts along the border "in a demonstration of their announced plans for close military cooperation."

Said Tanner: "The streets of Amman are a forest of Syrian flags, of portraits of the two leaders and of streamers with the inscription 'One people, one army.'"

At a banquet, Hussein had given in honor of Assad, the Syrian leader spoke out in pride about the newly-established relationship. He referred to Jordan as a new full-fledged "Arab confrontation State."

This can only have one meaning for Israel's enemies:

Jordan has once again cast its lot with all the other Arab States whose aim is the eventual destruction of the Jewish State.

And it is this Jordan that is now receiving sophisticated arms from benevolent America, arms which will be available to the Syrians who are so massively supported by the Soviets.

This new arms deal between Syria and Jordan changes the whole complexion of the Middle East situation and President Ford will now really have to re-assess America's policy vis-a-vis Jordan and the other Arabs. The other Arabs?

SADAT: NO PEACE NOW WITH ISRAEL

LONDON (WNS) -- Full peace between Israel and Egypt "should be left to the next generation," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said in a BBC television interview.

Sadat also said that full recognition of Israel was "not available now" and that the key to "a final solution" of the Middle East conflict is "in the hands of the United States which gives Israel everything" and is "the only one that can exert pressure on Israel." Sadat said he did not expect the U.S. to abandon Israel but wanted to know "Is the U.S. going to protect Israel within her own borders or conquests?"

Yes. Even Egypt. President Sadat has been playing a clever game with the U.S. He is still playing it.

The Leopard does not change his spots. Take note, Washington -- beware of trickery!

The Egyptian President said that whether Israeli cargo will be allowed through the Suez Canal "will depend on the conduct of Israel."
