

ISRAEL PEACE PROPOSAL

Resolutions 242 and 338," Anderson told newsmen. "I do not think that they need revision and I know of no plan to revise such resolutions."

Dinitz after his meetings with Kissinger said the U.S. has "a pretty comprehensive picture of the views, concepts and proposals that Israel has in mind for the next step" in the negotiations with Egypt. He said "everything Israel has presented is constructive and conducive to progress." But Dinitz said there will be no agreement in principle until all the problems are solved. "But I think we can say we have made progress and we hope that progress will continue so that components of an agreement will be ironed out," he said. The Israeli envoy also denied that Israel has been stalling in the negotiations or that the U.S. is putting pressure on Israel.

Meanwhile in Israel, the Israeli military appears to be more concerned about the Golan Heights than the Sinai situation because the departure of troops from Peru has left the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force with only 900 men, well below the 1250 required by the Israeli-Syrian disengagement agreement.

UN ISLAMIC COUNTRIES MOVE TO OUST ISRAEL

UNITED NATIONS (WUP) -- Iran and Turkey, both of which states retain good relations with Israel, joined a group of Arabs, Asians and other Moslems representing forty Islamic countries at a conference held in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, in demanding the expulsion of the Jewish State from the United Nations.

Yasir Arafat, present at the confab with a PLO delegation, gloated over the decision taken. Following the adoption of the resolution entitled "The Question of Palestine," one of Arafat's aides expressed the hope that the move for the expulsion of Israel from the UN would gain momentum by the adoption of similar resolutions at the forthcoming meetings of African leaders at Kampala, Uganda, and of the nonaligned countries at Lima, Peru.

The Islamic move for the expulsion of Israel, the news of which reached this headquarters at the time Egypt announced its refusal to renew the mandate for the UN Forces in Sinai, has deeply disturbed UN officials including the Secretary-General who is known to champion the universality of the world organization.

EGYPT'S OUSTING MANDATE FORCE DANGEROUS

UNITED NATIONS (WNS) -- The Security Council is due to meet to consider Egypt's refusal to renew the mandate of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Sinai which was due to expire July 24.

The Egyptian decision was announced in Cairo by Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and in a message sent to United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim. At a press conference in Cairo Fahmy said Egypt would not order the withdrawal of UNEF until the Security Council met. He said that Egypt wanted the UN to take economic sanctions against Israel. Fahmy accused Israel of using UNEF as a stalling device.

"While Egypt does not consent to further renew the mandate of UNEF she is not against the proper use of the force," Fahmy was quoted as saying. He said Egypt was angered by the lack of progress in reaching an interim agreement with Israel, but was still prepared to negotiate through the United States for a further Israeli withdrawal.

In Jerusalem, Premier Yitzhak Rabin told the Knesset that Israel would not be pressured by the Egyptian move. "If Egypt is interested in not prejudicing the disengagement agreement, it must respect the existence of the authority of UNEF which is an integral part of the disengagement agreement," Rabin declared.

Meanwhile Waldheim at a UN conference said the situation in the Mideast "continues to be dangerous" especially in view of the Egyptian announcement.

LOPSIDED VOTING MAY DESTROY UN

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, in a speech at the University of Wisconsin's Institute of World Affairs, warned against attempts by Third World countries to expel or suspend Israel from the United Nations or its agencies.

"If the UN begins to depart from its charter where suspension and expulsion are clearly specified prerogatives of the Security Council, we fear for the integrity and the survival of the General Assembly itself and no less for its specialized agencies," he declared. Kissinger also noted that "the coerced are under no compulsion to submit. To the contrary, they are given all too many incentives simply to depart the scene...."

Such incentives are ominously enhanced when the General Assembly and specialized agencies expel member nations, which, for one reason or another, do not meet with their approval."

Kissinger did not mention Israel by name but a high State Department official said one reason for his speech was to warn the General Assembly against any attempt to oust Israel. Kissinger also criticized UNESCO for voting sanctions against Israel and the International Labor Organization for admitting the Palestine Liberation Organization as observers. He also assailed the "lopsided, loaded voting, biased results and arbitrary tactics" which threaten to destroy "the utility of the General Assembly both as a safety valve and as an instrument of international cooperation."

Kissinger's warning went unheeded at a conference of foreign ministers of 40 Islamic nations in Jidda, Saudi Arabia, which voted unanimously to demand the expulsion of Israel from the UN and all other international organizations.

Asked about the Jidda resolution, Kissinger told newsmen, "we have not said exactly what we shall do if the Charter of the UN is violated but we believe that expulsion of a member would be an act which would affect American participation in the actions of that body."

Meanwhile Daniel P. Moynihan, after presenting his credentials as the American Ambassador to the United Nations, warned of "grave consequences" if the UN expelled Israel. He said the U.S. would not withdraw its membership but the U.S. role in the UN would change.

Meanwhile the European Economic Community and the British government have declared their opposition to the attempt to expel Israel. David Ennals, British Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, told the House of Commons that the move to expel Israel "would seriously endanger the prospects for successfully negotiating a settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute and it would gravely damage the credibility of the UN."

In New York, Rabbi Israel Miller, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, in condemning the resolution said the Arab states "disregard the efforts that are under way to reach a mutually acceptable solution."
