Susan S. Greffenius, mother of two sons who will attend school this fall, writes a lengthy letter protesting the down-grading of music education in our school district. What she says makes sense, and while space limitations prevent our printing her whole reasoning, we agree with her (and Renee Rampton) and hope the School Board will reconsider the re-institute music as a proper and full-time subject in our schools. We congratulate Harley Harmon on the site of his new Nevada State Bank in the West Sahara area. Each time we see Dennis James delivering those splendid Nevada State Bank TV commercials, we are reminded of the first story ever done on James in the N.Y. Times. We wrote it back about 1948, when TV, in its infancy, was being viewed mostly in neighborhood bars and Dennis was announcer and commentator for wrestling. Years later, as in Jacksonville, Fla., when we put on a show for the benefit of Boys Town of Italy, Dennis came up from Palm Beach to emcee personalities like Joe DiMaggio and Rocky Marciano, and performers like Vic Damone and Dale Robertson. Harmon and James make a highly respectable combo. Our best. (J.T.)
