pocketed in 1967. "Wouldn't you like a deal like that?"

In closing we comment on the Review Journal editorial, which we reprinted on Page 5. The Review Journal covers the story accurately and without pulling any punches, but it does not go far enough. It is truly frightening, as the Review Journal stated that the gaming officials issued license after license to Maheu without checking into his background.

What the Review Journal did not state was that it was Greenspun who is responsible for using his power as a publisher to pressure the gaming officials to hold a closed session for the Maheu licenses. It was Greenspun who testified as to Maheu's character and background. And it was Greenspun who induced the officials to break all precedent by issuing the licenses to Maheu for hotels owned by Hughes, without the appearance of Hughes.

How do you like that?
It appears that the association between Greenspun and Maheu is a lasting one, with mutual manifestations. Like the day Greenspun received the $4,000,000 from Hughes, he "loaned" Maheu $50,000. That loan has never been repaid to this day.
Nice, huh.

Behind The Scenes

At The United Nations

By DAVID HOROWITZ

A World-Union Press Feature

Last Act at U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, (WUP) --What amazes this writer in observing world events from this UN vantage point is how very accurately the prophets and writers of the Bible foresaw the political happenings of our own time.

Let us take, for example, the current pre-Assembly maneuver here in this world organization to oust Israel from the UN--a sinister move which was so well 'rehearsed' at the recent Islamic conference at Jidda, Saudi Arabia, and at the meeting of the Organization of African Unity at Kampala, Uganda, under the chairmanship of the black Hitler Idi Amin.

Note well, present at both conspiratorial confabs was the murderer Yasir Arafat who was once again, as at the previous session of the General Assembly, acclaimed and given a full hearing. No one objected as he vented his deep hate of Israel and expressed his satanic desire to eliminate the Jewish State. At Kampala, appearing with a pistol clearly seen strapped to his waist, this modern Antiochus in a one-hour diatribe against Israel shouted that "there can be no peace without a Palestine," an Arab Palestine. The Africans applauded and the rest of the world remained silent.

The present innate hatred of Israel on the part of so many states is deep-rooted. It can be traced back to Bible times and be understood only in the light of the struggle which had its inception in antiquity. Abraham had to contend with an "Arab" League in his day; Moses with the Egyptians; David with the Philistines, whose modern counterparts are the Palestinian guerrillas, and Ezra and Nehemiah with the neighboring states which then did exactly what their progeny is doing today in harassing the Israelites in their efforts to rebuild the country.

Thus, throughout the biblical and post biblical eras the Jewish people were beset not only by their immediate neighbors but also by some of the then 'super-powers' such as Chaldea-Bbylon, Assyria, etc., who likewise have their modern counterparts now found in the camp of Israel's enemies.

Surely, what we see happening today here at the UN and in the Middle East--the life and death attempts to undo Israel--is but a continuation of what the negative forces tried and hoped to do in antiquity. In our time, however, it appears clear that we have reached the climactic point in the age-long conflict, the last act in the eternal drama, so vividly depicted by the Prophets of Israel.

Let us make no mistake about it, this writer, who has covered the political doings here at the UN since its inception and who

R-J viewpoint

Robert Maheu--no patriotic figure

To use the old quote, Robert Maheu can explain "until hell freezes over" his role in the plot to assassinate Fidel Castro but he cannot come away unmarked or in any way appear to be patriotic. The thing was a mess and a black eye to America and Maheu was right in the middle of it.

Here is a man working with two of the biggest gangsters in America talking about a just cause and being patriotic and then saying Howard Hughes is more dangerous to the country than the Mafia.

This is the same man who not too long ago came into Nevada as Hughes' representative telling the residents how the entrance of Hughes into Nevada gambling would clean it all up. What has changed his mind besides being fired?

We weren't too convinced about Maheu then, and we certainly know where he stands now, and with whom.

It is frightening when we think back to how so many people rolled over and licked his hand when he came to Las Vegas. It is frightening to think that the gaming officials issued him gambling license after gambling license obviously without checking into his background. Certainly, we wouldn't expect a man friendly with the late Sam Giancana and John Roselli to be given the red carpet treatment by our gaming officials. But they did it for Maheu and it is pretty clear that he didn't undergo much of an investigation. No, too many people rolled over and played dead for Mr. Hughes and Mr. Maheu.

Of Roselli and Giancana, a couple of gangsters, Maheu said they seemed patriotic. He said they didn't seem to want anything out of it. How naive. No, with Castro out of the way they could have continued gambling operations in Havana.

Certainly, Castro is an enemy of the United States, but CIA plots to kill men like him is not what America is all about. It isn't what patriotic means. It isn't using the mob to protect the people of the United States. No, the mob wasn't doing any service for the country. The mob, unfortunately, does not have as many blunderheads in their organization as the government employs. The men in the Mafia knew exactly why they wanted to help the government. Maheu didn't see it then, and obviously he doesn't see it now. Or, he doesn't want to see it.

Maheu has also admitted bugging comedian Dan Rowan's room at the Riviera Hotel for Giancana. Maheu tries to explain it was for the CIA. It can't be explained. Was that part of Giancana's patriotic feelings, bugging Rowan's room?

Sen. George McGovern summed it up pretty well when he said the CIA has engaged in the most shocking, murderous and un-American behavior against the leaders of a neighboring state. "When it comes to being American or un-American or when it comes to being patriotic, we will go along with the likes of McGovern, not a Maheu.

Maheu should have given his testimony and then remained silent. He was involved in a situation that cannot be excused or explained. It can't be turned around to his favor. It can't be colored. It can't be excused.

A fiction writer couldn't get away trying to write a book about the government hiring the mob to kill the ruler of another country. So, when such a scheme surfaces in fact it is resounding. It certainly cannot be explained at a press conference.

Like we said earlier, it is a frightening thing to think about. Not too long ago a man was running Hughes' empire, a man who admits to hotel bugging, association with known big time hoodlums and a man willing to plot an assassination while on the payroll of the CIA. It is something for Nevadans to think about and be thankful that everything worked out like it did without further harm to the state.

has seen heads of state rise and fall--and also witnessed first hand the miracle of the rebirth of Israel in accordance with the prophetic biblical time-table--must note, once again as he has done so many times before, that the Hebrew Bible does not lie. It is alive, and the Watchman of Israel, very much on the world scene, is seeing to it that not a single word in it will fall to ground unfulfilled. Israel reborn is the sign of our times!

FORD VISIBLY MOVED AT AUSCHWITZ

PARIS (WNS) -- During his two-day visit to Poland, Pres. Ford visited Auschwitz and laid a wreath at the international monument marking the site of the notorious camp where four million Jews were slain by the Nazis during World War II.

However, the stone monument, erected by the Polish gov't, contains no mention that most of the victims were Jews. The inscription, in 20 languages, states only that "Four million people suffered and died here at the hands of the Nazi murderers between the years 1940 and 1945."

According to eye-witnesses, the Pres. was visibly moved as he toured the site. He made no formal statement, but remarked, "It's horrible..... unbelievable" when he viewed the site of the gas chambers and crematorium ovens. He wrote in the camp's Book of Remembrance: "This monument and the memory of those it honors is for us a new source of inspiration in the quest for peace and for cooperation and security for all nations."

Ford was accompanied by Polish Communist Party head Edward Gierek and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, many of whose relatives died in death camps similar to Auschwitz.
