

JERUSALEM (WUP) -- The well-known Russian compound in the heart of Jerusalem is to become a Civic Center.

The Jerusalem municipal council has approved architect Alfred Mansfeld's plan for the creation of a completely new city hall complex in the compound -- the city's best known landmark.

Facing some dissent from Religious Party councillors, the Council ordered the plan amended to include two separate squares, one surrounding the old Russian Orthodox Church on the site, and the other to enclose the existing City Hall on Jaffa Road.
