KISSINGER SAYS ACCORD COULD OPEN WAY TO PEACE IN MIDEAST

An open letter to:

DR. EVAN BLYTHEN
KLAS-TV, Channel 8.

What you are doing is the first indication of Journalistic maturity we have witnessed since coming to Las Vegas, some 15 years ago.

We are truly amazed at the caliber of reporting here, especially in the newspapers, but frequently on our radio and TV.

Two recent examples that come to mind emanated from the station that brings your refreshing appeal for enlightened, adult news coverage.

On the evening of the Flash Flood, in July, the 11 o'clock newscast opened with: "Las Vegas is a disaster area." This was not true because a "disaster area," to be so designated must be requested by the governor and so classified by the President of the U.S.

More recently, we were astounded to hear a lengthy disclaimer of stocks listed in a newscast of the stock market report. What next, we feared, a disclaimer of the baseball teams in the ball scores for the day?

We hope, Mr. Blythen, your efforts will correct the inaccuracies and hasten the maturity of news coverage, which the residents of Southern Nevada deserve.

Respectfully,
Jack Tell

should assert itself in the United Nations, Chaim Herzog, Israel's Ambassador to the UN, declared at a conference on "Israel and the United Nations" sponsored by the Synagogue Council of America. Herzog said that the American indifference to the UN over the past several years has hurt the world organization and has been bad for Israel. He said, however, there is a sign that American attitude is changing.

Herzog also scored the anti-Israeli resolutions adopted by the Organization of African States in Kampala, Uganda and the non-aligned conference in Lima, Peru, as an "unbelievable concentration of vilification, hate and baseless vituperation against Israel and the Jewish people."

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has begun efforts to win massive American support to the U.S. participation in the Israel-Egyptian agreement including the sending of American technicians to the Sinai and U.S. aid for Israel and Egypt.

Appearing before the House International Relations Committee, Kissinger warned that "The process of peace in the Middle East is not a matter that occurs thousands of miles away but which affects every American. The agreement could open the way to peace in the whole area."

Kissinger stressed that the total number of Americans sent to Sinai will not be more than 200 and no more than 75 would be at the monitoring stations at one time. The technicians, he emphasized, will not be there to serve one side or the other "in contrast to Vietnam." He stressed while both Egypt and Israel wanted the technicians, Israel would not sign the agreement if they will not be sent there.

At a press conference, Kissinger minimized the Palestine Liberation Organization threat to shoot the American monitors, noting that the Americans would be between Israel and Egyptian forces, and surrounded by United Nations troops. He said the Administration would decide soon whether the technicians would be provided by a private organization or the American government, stressing that it will definitely not be under the Department of Defense. Rep. Bella S. Abzug (D. NY) said she is forwarding to the State Department inquiries from women who would like to serve as American monitors in the Sinai.

Attending the High Holy services at Temple Beth Sholom, because of the large overflow of congregationists, we were forced to park across the street in the car space of the Griffith United Methodist Church, which extends this courtesy each Jewish holiday. This display of ecumenical friendship refreshed memories when the church played an important part of our attendance in the synagogue. Some 15 years ago when we first arrived in Las Vegas, we had difficulty in finding the way to our temple. Winding up and down side streets, looking for 16th and Oakley, the landmark we sought was the lighted emblem atop the steeple of the Griffith Church. It took a brilliant cross to get the Tells to Shul.

Any eight year old knows by now exactly why Sun publisher Hank Greenspun is running that nonentity series from Johnny Meier attempting to show a clandestine association between Howard Hughes and the CIA.

Written by an absolute nobody anyone ever heard of, slugged Sun Special Correspondent, the first three daily episodes revealed not one single item of news importance. There were hints of causing a sensation in U.S. political circles and shocking the American public, but facts and naming names, nothing.

The story did carefully refrain from the details of Meier's disassociation from Hughes in Nevada. Johnny, you will remember, purchased for Hughes some $20,000,000 in mining claims. When Meier left, about the time Robert Maheu was ousted, it was claimed the $20,000,000 was paid for mines that were not worth $100,000.

So investigators for Hughes did some investigating. Some chicanery was unearthed. The U.S. government wanted to know if taxes were paid on the outlandish prices paid to sellers, and the part played by Meier, other than acting as purchaser for Hughes. Whatever Meier's involvement, to be determined by the Courts, will have to wait a bit, because Johnny took it on the lam to Canada to avoid service.

But Greenspun has his own very good reason for headlining and streamlining this junk across page 1. You see, a new calendar date is about to be set in court for the return of $4,000,000 in cash loaned by Hughes to Greenspun back in 1967.

That was the loan, you will recall, maneuvered through Maheu, calling for a laughable three
