

ISRAELI CIVIL MARRIAGE BILL CONTROVERSY

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- The Independent Liberal Party's civil marriage bill, which has been held in abeyance under a agreement within Premier Yitzhak Rabin's coalition government that it not be introduced during the first year of the government's existence, will be submitted to the Knesset soon. The bill, authored by Minister - Without - Portfolio Gideon Hausner, is bitterly opposed by the National Religious Party which with the ILP and the Labor Alignment make up the coalition. The proposal to revive the bill was made by MK Yehuda Shaari after disclosures that the Ministry of Religious Affairs maintains a secret "black list" of Israelis to whom the Chief Rabbinate denies marriage on halachic (religious law) grounds. The list currently contains the names of 2500 men and women who are ineligible for marriage according to the Orthodox interpretation of halacha. The Hausner bill would provide civil marriage for these people. Religious Ministry officials admitted the existence of the secret list after it was disclosed by Shulamit Aloni and other supporters of civil marriage. The Ministry said the list was intended only for rabbis authorized to perform marriages.

RUMANIA'S LIBERAL POLICY SHORT LIVED

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- Rumania's liberalized emigration policy for Jews wishing to go to Israel was short lived, according to tourists returning from that country.

They said the Rumanian government opened the gates only long enough to secure trade benefits from the United States. The tourists said that since then the Bucharest regime has drastically reduced the number of new exit visas and told some persons that had already received visas that they were cancelled.
