YALE PROFESSOR ATTACKS U.S. MIDEAST POLICY

NEW YORK (WNS) -- Eugene V. Rostow, a former Undersecretary of State, charged that in negotiating the disengagement agreements between Israel and Egypt the United States abandoned its reliance on United Nations Security Council Resolutions 242 and 338.

Noting that the resolutions provide that "the Israelis need not withdraw one inch from the cease-fire lines until there is a firm and binding agreement of peace," he said the U.S. "gave up its strongest and most important negotiating position."

Rostow, who is now Sterling Professor of Law and Public Affairs at Yale University, made his remarks to the second annual symposium of the National Committee on American Foreign Policy. He said the U.S. has no chance of weaning Israel away from the Arabs until the Arabs have given up their "dream of destroying Israel."

He charged that "by pressing Israel to give up some of the occupied territories without peace, we have allowed Arab states to continue to hope that somehow, someday, with Soviet help, they will be able to liquidate Israel."

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- Israel must be ready for a shift in American policy toward the recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization, former Information Minister Aharon Yariv said after returning from a six-week visit to the United States.

He said the U.S. may also support the establishment of a Palestinian state between Jordan and Israel within the framework of an overall Middle East peace settlement. Yariv, a former chief of military intelligence, said that if the government had accepted his formula of expressing willingness to negotiate with the PLO if the terrorist group recognized Israel's right to exist, Israel's overseas information campaign would have been more successful.

Meanwhile, Israel's former Ambassador to the United Nations, Yosef Tekoah, told an audience in Ashkelon that the government needs a much broader political base before it could even consider dealing with the PLO. He suggested holding the next general elections earlier than the scheduled 1977 date so that the government can command the widest political support in dealing with the Palestinian question.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told the Cabinet that during his visit to Washington he learned that the U.S. wants a movement toward peace in the Mideast this year because it fears a stalemate would lead to war. He said the Americans have not ruled out talks with King Hussein of Jordan on some kind of interim settlement. Israeli officials have denied that Premier Yitzhak Rabin met with Hussein when both were vacationing along the Red Sea, Rabin in Eilat and Hussein across the water in Aqaba.

Allon meanwhile says that it is still unclear how the Mideast debate will develop in the UN Security Council. He said the Arabs are still split between a moderate and extreme resolution and Israel fears that a moderate resolution will be introduced which will be difficult for the U.S. to veto. Allon said Israel's decision to boycott the debate because of the presence of the PLO served as a warning what Israel would do if the Council changed its earlier resolutions on the Mideast.

SECURITY COUNCIL DEBATE ENDS

UNITED NATIONS (WNS) -- The United Nations Security Council debate on the Middle East ended as Arab nations sought to complete a draft resolution calling for Israel's withdrawal from occupied Arab territories, the establishment of a Palestinian state and recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization as an equal partner in Mideast negotiations.

Although the Arabs were reported softening their stand to gain European support the resolution is still expected to be vetoed by the United States. U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan told the council that any imposed changes in Resolutions 242 and 338 that were unacceptable to any of the parties will not work.

End to Bankruptcy
From Hospital Bills

DAVID R.

If you are going to get sick, or if you get the urge to take chances behind the wheel of your car, or if you are in a jay-walking hurry, we suggest you exercise those options on a Friday or Saturday.

Anyone admitted to Sunrise Medical Center on those two days will be entitled to a 5.25 percent cash rebate on the total hospital bill, regardless of how many days, or weeks, or months of confinement. This was announced by David R. Brandsness, Sunrise administrator, who assured us the full services of all facilities and personnel are available each of the 24 hours of the seven days of every week.

This revolutionary new health care policy has never before been attempted by any other hospital in the United States. It was initiated, according to Brandsness, because of the overload, even turnaway, of patients on week days and the lesser demand of approximately 60 per cent occupancy on Fridays and Saturdays.

The rebate will be mailed directly to the patient by Sunrise and the bonanza will have no effect on insurance claims, stated the administrator. He added, with only three percent of the population being protected by 100 percent of
