

PLO FIZZLES OUT AT UN DEBATE

UNITED NATIONS (WUP) -- The infamous two-week-long Security Council session on the Middle East, which was initiated by a Syrian blackmail threat linked to the renewal of the UN Peace Force in the Golan and which had given Yassir Arafat's band of gangsters such great hope of attaining their ends, turned into a 'defeat' for the PLO and their many supporters who had tried desperately to invalidate resolutions 242 and 338.

torial entitled "Wasting Diplomacy," the New York Times noted at week's end prior to the continuous - delayed voting that "the Syrian 'peace' initiative against Israel... is floundering, overwhelmed not only by the acute crisis in Lebanon but also by the internal dynamics of inter-Arab diplomacy."

"After more than a week of general debate in the Council, not one of these developments can be regarded as likely... Serious negotiation within the Council on this issue is precluded, as several of the vitally interested countries have no voting power there and several governments with no active interest in Middle

ALLOON WARNS PLO COULD TERRORIZE ARAB LANDS

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Noting that the Palestine Liberation Organization has played the role of mercenaries doing the bidding of Syria.

East diplomacy do. Furthermore, whatever status the PLO may consider it has attained by sitting at the Council table has been vastly overshadowed by the Lebanese crisis. The PLO Army has become committed in combat, on ambiguous terms, in an internal Arab power struggle well away from the soil of Palestine. And the United States has left no room for doubt that it will use its veto power rather than permit previous Security Council resolutions to be altered in a lopsided way.

Foreign Minister Yigal Allon warned the Knesset that the involvement of the Palestinian terror groups in Lebanon could be repeated in other Arab countries. Allon said the Lebanese episode proved the real meaning of the Palestine Liberation Organization's proposal for a "secular, democratic state." Allon said while Israel grieved at a human tragedy across its border, it remained on guard against developments that might affect Israel's security.

Meanwhile Hella Josin, a 15-year-old Lebanese Christian girl became the first victim of the Lebanese conflict to find a haven in Israel since the border was opened to war refugees. She was taken to a hospital in Safad where surgery was performed to remove shotgun bullets from her leg. She has been unable to get treatment in Lebanon because the hospitals were jammed with wounded.
