

UAHC HONORS SPIEGEL OF NY TIMES FOR HALF CENTURY OF WRITING

NEW YORK -- Veteran New York journalist Irving Spiegel was honored by leaders of American Reform Judaism at the meeting last week of the Executive Committee of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Rabbi Alexander M.

Schindler presented Mr. Spiegel with a limited edition of "The Psalms" with illustrations by Ismar David published by the UAHC. In making the presentation, Rabbi Schindler lauded the New York Times reporter as the possessor of a "rich, Jewish heart and spirit who has devoted his energies and professional talents in helping to create a greater awareness among all people about the meaning of Judaism, the work of our people and Israel."

After acknowledging the presentation Mr. Spiegel proceeded to give the Reform leaders Yiddish lessons by regaling them with his renowned translations of Julius Caesar's speech, a T.S. Eliot poem, and "The Charge of the Light Brigade." His anecdotes had the Reform leaders from all parts of the country and Canada howling. Many New York Times officials and colleagues of the journalist present,

MAJOR U.S. FIRMS VIOLATE ANTI-BOYCOTT

NEW YORK (WNS) Major American corporations are paying no attention to the federal government's laws prohibiting compliance with the Arab boycott against Israel, representatives of two Jewish organizations told the New York State Assembly Subcommittee on Human Rights.

Will Maslow, general counsel of the American Jewish Congress said "major corporations treat the federal (anti-boycott) law as a joke." He said, "leaders of American industry whose names are household words are cravenly surrendering to Arab pressure by refusing to do business with American companies on the Arab blacklist."

Daniel S. Shapiro, honorary president of the American Jewish Committee's New York chapter, told the subcommittee that the Corporation and Bankers Trust Co. are among major violators.

Both Maslow and Shapiro urged enforcement of New York State's new law prohibiting compliance with the boycott. However, officials of four banks -- Bankers Trust, First National City Corp., Chemical Bank and Chase Manhattan -- said they supplied letters of credit which carried attached certificates that the goods were not made in Israel and that this did not violate state or federal laws. Edwin Barch, associate counsel of Chemical Bank, said this is "consistent with the distinction drawn by the United States government itself between actions which discriminate against United States firms and citizens,
