JEWISH EDITOR GOES FOR WESTERN SWING AT LANDMARK HOTEL

BY JACK TELL

A Jewish editor going overboard for a Western - Swing show has to be some kind of a paradox, but without fear of contradiction, we state without qualification the Hank Thompson, Sue Thompson, Peter Anthony show in the Jubilee Room of the Landmark Hotel is complete gratification from start to finish.

If we weren't toe-tapping to accompany Hank's rhythms, we were swaying with Sue's melodies or howling at Peter's antics. For a low-budget show it is a money-winner from the word go.

Hank Thompson, the star act, exudes confidence as soon as he makes appearance and the audience falls right into the groove. He sings with authority and his repertoire shows understanding of what the customer wants.

Sue Thompson, who sweet-voices through her perennial "Paper Tiger" and "Norman" in delightful nostalgia, captured us with her "Tennessee Waltz" in Spanish, no less. That one number was worth the price of admission.

Peter Anthony is something else.

Every 20 or 30 years we latch on to a funny man who has us howling with every line and move. First it was Joe Frisco, then

PETER

Henny Youngman. Now its Peter Anthony. Peter works hard putting on a different act for every show. He's the kind of a performer you must know, and accept, in order to appreciate his offerings. For us he's tops and our biggest expectation on the entertainment scene is following Anthony's progress to the superstar we know he will become. By the way, the Landmark food is delectable at comparable prices.

Still the most meaningful program in town...
