

Passover Message

By Rabbi Fabian Schonfeld
 Pres. of Rabbinical Council of Amer.
 If there is one lesson to be learned and taught with regard to Passover which American Jews must take to heart, it is the need to identify completely and fully with the fate of the Jewish people everywhere, especially with our brethren in the Soviet Union and in Israel. The Passover Haggadah bids us to look upon ourselves as if we had been living in the generation of the Exodus. The Exodus did indeed begin in Egypt but has continued throughout history up to this present day. There are Pharoshs in every generation and in many parts of the globe who continue to persecute the Jews.

 It is this identification with our brothers who suffer the misery of discrimination and persecution which alone would help us regain the sense of unity and belonging which has unfortunately and regrettably been eroded among many of our youth.
 This sense of identity can only be achieved through intensive religious Jewish education, based not upon a secular concept of Zionism but upon a sacred idea of "Return to Zion" as it is found throughout the literature of Judaism.
