GUSH EMUNIM ACTION CREATES SPLIT

JERUSALEM (WNS) -- Pressure is being mounted on Premier Yitzhak Rabin to hold a Cabinet debate on Jewish settlements on the West Bank and determine the fate of the controversial Gush Emunim encampment outside the Kadum army base in the Samaria Region.

Rabin has been delaying a promised session in the issue which could result in a split in his coalition government from either the right or the left. The National Religious Party has threatened to pull out of the coalition if the Gush Emunim settlers are evicted. A failure to evict the settlement could result in Mapam moving out of the Labor Alignment as well as splits within the ranks of Rabin's own Labor Party.

Addressing a symposium at Beit Berl the Labor Party's ideological center, Justice Haim Zadok said the decision to allow the Gush Emunim group to remain at Kadum was a "grave mistake." He denounced the group, made up of Orthodox nationalists as a band of "religious zealots and extreme nationalists" who threaten democracy in Israel because they "do not see themselves bound by the rules of the game within a democratic society." Zadok said the squatters should have been removed from Samaria, by force if necessary, when they first established themselves there and should be removed now. He also blasted the two-day march by Gush Emunim supporters during Passover.

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon has postponed a scheduled visit to the United States because he wants to participate in the debate on the West Bank settlements. Allon's decision serves notice on Rabin that the Cabinet "doves" want a decision made soon.

Defense Minister Shimon Peres, who allowed the settlers to stay at Kadum, is supported by Police Minister Shlomo Hillel and Transportation Minister Gad Yaacobi, as well as the NRP. Welfare Minister Zevulun Hammer.

WASHINGTON (WNS) -- President Ford continues to be adamant against providing aid to Israel and other countries to cover the transitional quarter between the end of the current fiscal year on June 30 and the start of the 1977 fiscal year on October 1.

There are also indications that Ford may veto the entire foreign aid bill because of what he Presidential powers. Meanwhile Congress has adopted a $4.4 billion foreign aid authorization bill which includes $2.26 billion in economic and military assistance for Israel. The bill authorizes up to 25 percent of the amount approved for this year to be added on for the transitional quarter which would give Israel an additional $550 million. The aid bill was approved by a 215-185 vote in the House and 51-35 in the Senate. Both bodies still have to vote on a bill appropriating the funds.

Ford, while campaigning in Dallas for the Texas Republican primary, told the Texas Jewish Post that he still opposed providing Israel with the $550 million in transitional quarter aid. He said that is "no need in a 25-month period for any more" after Israel has received $4 billion during that time. The President was apparently referring to the $2.2 billion he has asked Congress to provide Israel in the current fiscal year and the $1.8 billion he is proposing for fiscal 1977. Earlier White House sources had also said that the President has not changed his mind over the transitional funding.

This came after Sen. Clifford Case (R, NJ) the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Ford was amenable to a compromise under which Israel would re-

First 40 Years

In the year 1936, Mother's Day fell on Sunday, May 10th. That's the day we committed matrimony.

A word about the ritual. The announcement proclaimed Beatrice, daughter of Charles and Bessie Goldstein and Jack, son of Joseph and Dora Tell, will take the marriage vows at 2 p.m. at Temple Beth El, North Bergen, New Jersey. The sides were evenly matched. The bride's relatives and friends on the left and the groom's counterparts on the right, eying each other for the first time to see what their darlings had gotten into. We won the opening round because our brother Abe was at the door charging 10 cents admission for her kin to get in. But they evened the score by beating our more reserved, less experienced relatives to the victuals following the ceremony.

After the "I do," and Rabbi Friedman sentenced us to life, we exploded the shot glass wrapped in a napkin with one deft stomp and then the fun began.

Joy reigned supreme. It lasted for forty years with no end in sight. To be sure there were ripples, but the "ups" superceded the "downs" and taken as a whole, we look back at the first 480 months with grateful satisfaction.

The amalgamation of feminine profundity and masculine innocence, that started with a capitalization of 15 cents, boasts a financial growth to $628 in a dual signature account. There are about $20,000 in debts. But they are not due and should be payable sometime during the second 40 years. We hope.

Our bride was all a maiden should be on the bridal night. Daintily clad in a sheer nightgown she demurely approached the bed, proceeded to open the envelopes and add up the money we had received as gifts. That took four hours, which left little time for romance that evening. We were in a suite at the Park Central Hotel, the same room where Arnold Rothstein met his demise later on. It was a murder never solved. The next morning we were back in class at St. John's U. on the way to the LL.B Degree.

Our bride never lacked for surprises and excitement. During our preliminary years we lived at an uncle's hotel in the Gramercy Park section of New York. They liked us there because a new, young, happily married couple
