

SENATE BILL WOULD JAIL BOYCOTT EXECs.

WASH. (WNS) -- A bill penalizing American corporations that resort to bribery or comply with the Arab boycott against Israel was approved in the Senate by an 86 - 1 vote.

The bill, which is part of the Tax Reform Act, must now go to the House for approval. The lone negative vote was cast by Sen. Floyd Haskell (D. Colo.) who said he voted against the provision because he was against the entire Tax Reform Act.

The Senate action would subject corporate executives to penalties including up to a year in jail for failure to report any corporate income derived as a result of bribes or earning in any country that requires participation in a boycott.

Meanwhile, the House subcommittee on government information and individual rights headed by Rep. Bella Abzug (D.N.Y) is considering legislation making non-discrimination mandatory in the overseas assignment policies of federal agencies. Representatives of Jewish organizations testifying before the subcommittee said that legislation is required to combat the discriminatory character of the Arab boycott.

In another development, the Department of Commerce has announced it has withdrawn its participation from the scheduled "Joint Mideast-American Business Conference" at the University of Maine following the scheduling of a discussion showing Americans how to be "de-listed" from the Arab boycott. The State and Commerce Departments had assisted in setting up the five-day meeting which will be attended by some 200 Iranian, Arab and American businessmen. The cancellation by the Commerce Department followed a protest by Rep. Sidney R. Yates (D. Ill.)
