HOW LONG WILL RUSSO-ARABS BAR UN FROM ACTING ON TERRORISM ?

ISRAEL PATROLLING LEBANESE COAST

TEL AVIV (WNS) -- Intensified patrols off the south Lebanese coast are being conducted by the Israeli navy in an effort to make it difficult for the terrorist organizations and the leftist forces in Lebanon to receive military supplies.

Israel has intercepted boats going to and from the Lebanese ports of Tyre and Sidon, which are close to the Israeli borders and are the main ports from which the terrorist and leftists receive arms. Israel has publicly announced three interceptions and believes its efforts are hurting the terrorists.

However, Israel has denied any knowledge about the sinking of a Cypriot ship carrying arms outside Tyre. "We know nothing about it," an army spokesman said. Palestinian sources in Lebanon charged that Israeli frogmen caused the explosion of the ship "Athens." But another source in Lebanon said the ship was blown up by a torpedo. A report from Cyprus said that the ship was blown up by the same elements responsible for the sinking of another arms ship near Sidon.

Syrian and Lebanese Christian patrols have also been conducting a siege of the ports to block the supply of arms. The Christian forces recently claimed that a Libyan ship unloaded a number of dismantled Mirage jet fighters which were reassembled on improvised airstrips constructed in Moslem-held territory in south Lebanon.

MRS. BLOCH'S SON KNOWS HIS MOTHER'S KILLERS

LONDON (WNS) -- Bertram Bloch told reporters here that he knows the names of the four members of the Ugandan secret police who killed his mother, Mrs. Dora Bloch, in the wake of the Israeli rescue action at Entebbe Airport.

Bloch, an Israeli engineer, has been in Britain investigating his mother's death. He said that he would be willing to testify to an inquiry commission in Uganda if President Idi Amin set one up.

Mrs. Bloch, who held dual British and Israeli citizenship, was taken to a hospital in Kampala shortly before the Israeli raid,

Editorial

The terrorist atrocity at Istanbul Airport in which four passengers waiting to board an El Al plane were killed and a score of others injured is the latest deadly reminder that the world has still failed to take adequate measures against international terrorism.

The State Department commenting on the incident expressed the hope that it along with the hijacking of the Air France plane to Uganda would "prod leaders of the world into taking positive action on the question of terrorism. This is an issue that must be addressed in the United Nations and is a matter of greater urgency."

But the UN, which has had the issue of terrorism on its agenda for four years, has failed to act. During this time, the U.S. has urged an international treaty which would require countries to deny sanctuary to terrorists and to provide for their extradition. Resolutions urging these steps are now before Congress.

Convention Reflections

As you are reading this on Friday (or thereafter) you, of course, will be very much aware of the man chosen (on Wednesday) to represent the Republican Party for the Presidency of the United States.

But here it is the previous Sunday evening we are writing this piece while witnessing TV reports on events taking place prior to the convention. There is Gerald Ford and there is Ronald Reagan. They had just arrived in Kansas City and were addressing thousands on hand for their receptions, each at his own hotel headquarters.

A single description would most accurately portray what was taking place at both locations. A crowd of wildly enthusiastic, screaming supporters boomed assent on every word. So certain were they of victory that joy reigned supreme. There was a triumphant waving of gay banners. Ferver was at its highest pitch. The conquest was at a successful conclusion.

And here it was at the very outset of battle. It reminded us of the Arab mob going deliriously crazy in Cairo at the outset of the Six Day War. The analogy could not be erased. The situations were so alike.

But there was one bothersome thought. We couldn't tell (remember this was last Sunday) whether the Egyptian demonstration was Reagan's or Ford's.

Now (we're back to Friday and you are reading this column) we all know the outcome. We know full well which one took on Israel.

As for the other, after a little bit it will start all over again. But next time it will be Reagan and Carter, or Ford and Carter. Which-ever, it will be the same old story with the names changing until one is left.

The winners cheer themselves hoarse and go home. The losers cry on each other's shoulders and go home. After a couple of days all is forgotten until --- four years later, it starts all over again.

Such is politics.

LOS ANGELES (WNS) -- The Pacific southwest regional office of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League is considering legal action against an exclusive Palm Springs country club which the ADL charges with "institutional discrimination." The assistant golf professional at the O'Donnell Golf Club, David Ross, has admitted that applications at O'Donnell be carefully screened "otherwise you'd have a lot of Jews coming in there all the time."
